Welcome

The past two years have seen many people reflect on what matters most, and the notion of 'building back better' is widely touted. During that time the Bristol University Press (BUP) team has continued to focus on producing excellent quality scholarship and debate, from a wide range of perspectives and approaches, that shines a light on social problems and global social challenges. This vital, critical work remains, and we are focused on building a better future.

Our role as a university press is to enable scholars, professionals and experts by experience to share their knowledge and insights as widely as possible and to help them make the difference they wish to see in the world. Our continuing quest is to reach beyond academia to influence wider cultural and social norms.

As a first step, two exciting projects will be launched in 2022:

Our pioneering Open Access, non-profit Global Social Challenges Journal (GSCJ) (pp 5-6) which will provide a forum for discussion between academics, policy makers, thought leaders, NGOs, practitioners and the public by providing free access to evidence-based knowledge.

The GSCJ will be part of our new content delivery platform, Bristol University Press Digital (p 4). This will host all BUP and Policy Press journal articles and the majority of our books so readers will be able to find research and teaching material grouped by subject/topic, global social challenges and the UN SDGs.

In this catalogue, we are delighted to present our new titles for Spring and Summer 2022. We are extremely grateful to the University of Bristol for its support in enabling us to make a positive impact locally and globally and I hope you can join us in pursuing our social and environmental goals.

All Bristol University Press and Policy Press content in one place

This new platform will offer you instant access to Bristol University Press and Policy Press digital content: ebooks, journal articles and collections from across the social sciences, including the new, non-profit, open access (OA) Global Social Challenges Journal.

Bristol University Press Digital, launching in Spring 2022, has been developed as part of our mission to publish research that tackles the biggest problems facing the world today.

The platform provides users with uniquely curated, themed e-collections around the Global Social Challenges and the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), enabling scholarly communities and practitioners with crucial insights to effect positive change in the world.

Benefits for academics, researchers and libraries include:

- Our complete catalogue of 1,600 books, 18 journals and 80 OA titles, all searchable by Global Social Challenges;
- Exclusive access to our OA journal Global Social Challenges, which breaks down boundaries to participation in, and access to, truly global social science research;
- An innovative tagging system, saving libraries time and resource in collating content and maintaining collection relevance to rapidly evolving themes;

- Maximum discoverability of our authors' work across books and journals;
- An intuitive and easy-to-use solution for both readers and librarians;
- Key industry standards for accessibility (WAGC 2.0) and reporting (COUNTER-compliant statistics).

Bristol University Press Digital will revolutionise the way scholarly communities search, experience and share content by connecting you with research that addresses the global social challenges.

Global Social Challenges Journal

NON-PROFIT, OPEN ACCESS
PUBLISHING FOR CHANGE

Bristol University Press is delighted to announce its first fully open access journal.

"I'm proud to see Bristol University Press launching this important new journal, which promises to address the most urgent complexities of global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines to inform policy and practice."

PROFESSOR JUDITH SQUIRES, DEPUTY VICE-CHANCELLOR AND PROVOST, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

How can we reimagine society in an era of climate change, pandemic, hunger, poverty, questions of racial, ethnic and gender justice and other pressing global societal challenges? Significant threats and dangers lie ahead of us, but so do opportunities, as new ways of being, thinking and doing emerge. This new, fully open access journal aims to facilitate thinking about these positive new trajectories and to become the journal of choice to address the complexities of global social challenges across disciplines and fields.

It will be the first such journal to be based in the social sciences while also engaging with research from humanities, arts and STEM. Including marginalised, minority and indigenous world views, the journal will be an important home for research that contributes to the creation of alternative futures that acknowledge past injustices and are socially and environmentally just and sustaining.

The first content will be published online in 2022 and if you are interested in submitting to the journal, please see our instructions for authors.

Urgent Business

Five Myths Business Needs to Overcome to Save Itself and the Planet

Ian Thomson and Dominic Bates, University of Birmingham

"As someone who helped develop the UN's Global Goals, I know how crucial this fast-disappearing 'decade of action' is to averting an apocalyptic future, which is why this book is so important in helping translate the Goals into practical steps every business can take now."

PAUL POLMAN, CEO OF UNILEVER

"I wish I had the advantage of this book in shaping the responsible business journey of the consumer goods companies I was a leader in."

ANDRAEA DAWSON-SHEPHERD, C-SUITE EXECUTIVE, GLOBAL FMCG/CPG

"Many books claim to inform the new science of ESG (environmental, social and governance), but here's a novelty: a well-informed, broad-based, practical guide to help purposeful, responsible business do things right."

TOM LEVITT, CONSULTANT, SECTOR 4 FOCUS, CO-FOUNDER FAIR FOR YOU

Getting business on board is essential if we want to achieve the United Nations' goal of building a better future for people and planet by 2030. But much of the sustainable business agenda falls woefully short of what is needed, with some practices even accelerating the problems they're trying to solve.

Ian Thomson and Dominic Bates, a business school professor and a former journalist, combine their expert insight to challenge five common myths that trap businesses in an unsustainable black hole and offer a manifesto for change. Combining cutting-edge research – from AI and systems theory to climate science and behavioural economics – with fascinating real-world examples, the authors highlight the practical and holistic steps all businesses can take to play their part in addressing the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

The Unlikely Candidate

What Losing an Election Taught Me about How to Change Politics

Ali Milani, Labour Party politician, councillor and activist

"Ali Milani has inspired so many more young people to get involved in politics. He is a force to be reckoned with."

AFZAL KHAN MP

Across the Western world, people are desperate for a radical shift in the kinds of politics and politicians that they are presented with. Primary defeats to established figures and shock results in referendums are becoming the norm, while 'outsiders' are shaking up political cultures.

In this book, Ali Milani, a rising star in the UK's Labour Party, brings a unique perspective to the key political issues we are now facing in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic to show how young people from different backgrounds can engage in politics.

Using his rollercoaster campaign against Prime Minister Boris Johnson in the UK's 2019 general election and his time in Bernie Sanders's campaign team, he inspires a new generation of political leaders from the disenfranchised, disillusioned and marginalised to usher in a new wave of diverse voices and experience in mainstream politics.

The Rules of Democracy

Marcial Bragadini Boo, Chief Executive of UKPHR

"Straight from the machine room of democracy, Marcial Boo explains how it functions and what's next. Highly recommended."

ANDREAS BUMMEL, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF DEMOCRACY WITHOUT BORDERS

"This novel and contentious book shows how democracy can respond to the challenges of globalisation and technology. Marcial Bragadini Boo makes a thoughtful contribution to the debate around democratic alternatives to populism and authoritarianism."

MATTHEW FLINDERS, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

The world can be run better. Democracy is the most effective way to take back control over decisions that impact people's lives. But democracy must evolve following a global technological revolution which has increased fears that global trade and immigration threaten our identity, that we face environmental ruin and that cybercriminals and Big Tech can do as they please, unchecked, and all made worse by COVID-19.

This book presents a road map for more accountable democracy locally, nationally and internationally. Marcial Bragadini Boo proposes updating rules, so politicians are better held to account, public services improve and people contribute to their communities too. New rules of democracy may help find solutions to global problems and ensure everyone is fairly represented at the decision-making table.

The Cruel Optimism of Racial Justice

Nasar Meer, University of Edinburgh

"Nasar Meer weaves together an impressive account, drawing on research in a number of national contexts, to address the question of why there has been a failure to achieve the objective of racial justice. This masterful account should become an important part of future conversations by researchers and policymakers about how we can lay the foundations for radical change in this vital area of the social world."

JOHN SOLOMOS, UNIVERSITY OF WARWICK

"Timely and insightful, provides not only a clear mapping of our current context with regard to racial justice, what has been achieved, what has been obscured and what has failed, but also what can be done. An essential read in the current reactionary conjuncture and provides us with ways in which to think our past, present and future in more hopeful and just terms."

AURELIEN MONDON, UNIVERSITY OF BATH

A dominant view of racial justice has long been linked to a 'cruel optimism' which normalises social and political outcomes that sustain racial injustice, despite successive governments wielding the means to address it. Researchers, activists and minoritised groups continually identify the drivers of these outcomes, but have grown accustomed to persevering despite strong resistance to change.

Looking at numerous examples across antiracist movements and key developments in nationhood/nationalism, institutional racism, migration, White supremacy and the disparities of COVID-19, Nasar Meer argues for the need to move on from perpetual crisis in racial justice to a turning point that might herald a change to deep-seated systems of racism.

The Death of The Left

Why We Must Begin from the Beginning Again

Simon Winlow and Steve Hall, Teeside University

"This is probably the most important book to emerge in the humanities and social sciences in the last two decades."

TARA BRABAZON, FLINDERS UNIVERSITY

"The Left is dead. Its ailments cannot be cured. In its current form it cannot win elections, transform the economy, or advance the interests of the broad multi-ethnic working class."

Winlow and Hall argue that the only way to resurrect what was once valuable in leftist politics is to declare the left dead and begin from the beginning again. They focus on key historical moments when the left could have pushed history in a better direction.

They identify the root causes of its maladies, describe how new cultural obsessions displaced core unifying principles and explore the yawning chasm that now separates the left from the working class. Drawing upon a wealth of historical evidence to structure their story of entryism, corruption, fragmentation and decline, they close the book by outlining how a new reincarnation of the left can win in the 21st century.

Escaping Dystopia

Rebuilding a Public Domain

Stephen McBride, McMaster University

"Clearly identifies the challenges facing us, and what we can do about them. It should be required reading for everyone who wants to advance change."

RANDALL GERMAIN, CARLETON UNIVERSITY

"For anyone seeking to rethink political economy for the 2020s, including the rules governing global capitalism, Escaping Dystopia has provided a valuable roadmap."

SIMON LEE, UNIVERSITY OF HULL

Multiple crises have led many to conclude that the current economic and political system is broken. The present and future look increasingly precarious – if not outright dystopian.

Stephen McBride calls for radical solutions to these crises to provide a more rational and sustainable future. He also critiques other potential responses which would further curtail democracy and increase the inequalities associated with neoliberal globalism.

Demonstrating how mainstream ideas, powerful interests and political institutions face major challenges but block progressive alternatives, he argues that for radical transformation to succeed, major institutional changes are necessary.

Radical Empathy

Finding a Path to Bridging Racial Divides

Terri E. Givens, Centre for Higher Education

"Radical empathy, integrating, actually requiring, empathy for self along with others, and prioritizing action, is exactly what our culture needs most to get closer to living our ideals."

ELISA CAMAHORT PAGE, INDEPENDENT CONSULTANT

"With a background not that different from her likely readership, Dr Givens outlines a difficult path to integration: Radical Empathy, one I profoundly believe in. If we are to heal the wounds of the world, we will only do it if we first connect, and then understand."

CHUCK PEZESHKI, WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

"Many people and companies are all talk and no action. Givens shares her story and perspective while blending in her deep research and experience on racial inequity. This is the playbook for how to heal our rifts and better connect with each other."

MARIA ROSS, RED SLICE, PODCAST HOST, AND AUTHOR OF THE EMPATHY EDGE

In the USA, political developments in the 21st century have shown that deep racial divides remain. The persistence of inequality indicates the stubborn resilience of the institutions that maintain white supremacy. To bridge our divides, renowned political scientist Terri Givens calls for 'radical empathy' - moving beyond an understanding of others' lives and pain to understand the origins of our biases, including internalized oppression. Deftly weaving together her own experiences with the political, she offers practical steps to call out racism and bring about radical social change.

The Forgotten City

Rethinking Digital Living for Our People and the Planet

Phil Allmendinger, University of Cambridge

"A vital-needed corrective to so much of the unthinking smart cityism out there promising the taming of wicked urban planning problems. Be distracted by this engaging book instead of your mobile phone or laptop."

NICHOLAS A. PHELPS, UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE

"Not only does this book make the important connection between resilience and digital technologies, but it does what very few have done: it places people at the centre of smart cities."

NANCY ODENDAAL, UNIVERSITY OF CAPE TOWN

"A solid foundation on which to build the next chapter of the love affair between the city and technology – the Smart City post COVID-19."

IRENA BAUMAN, BAUMAN LYONS ARCHITECTS

We all want cities, where more than half of the world's population currently live, to be just, successful, clean, fair, green, sustainable, safe, healthy and affordable. Will 'smart cities' help achieve these aspirations or undermine them in the time of COVID-19?

Phil Allmendinger, a world expert on cities, development and urban governance, takes a critical approach to the role of 'smart' in future cities and the relationship with city development. Considering how technology can support active citizenship, he challenges the commercial drivers of Big Tech and warns that these, not developments for 'social good', may dominate.

Focusing on the dangers posed by social media, the platform economy and AI, he sets out what those making decisions on city development need to understand in order to save the planet through active politics and healthy cities.

White But Not Quite

Central Europe's Illiberal Revolt

Ivan Kalmar, University of Toronto

Populism in Central Europe is part of a worldwide response to neoliberal globalisation, whose disastrous effects determined the region's brutal transition to capitalism.

In this startling and original book, Kalmar uses examples from popular culture to sport to reject as racist the idea that Central Europe's cultures are incompatible with liberal democracy.

The Roots of Racism

The Politics of White Supremacy in the US and Europe

Terri E. Givens, McGill University

"Successfully brings together the personal, professional and important; timely and much needed."

AARON WINTER, UNIVERSITY OF EAST LONDON

Racism has deep roots in both the United States and Europe. This important book shows how policies have developed over a long history of European and White American dominance of political institutions and policies that maintain White supremacy.

Givens examines the connections between immigration policy and racism that have led to the rise of anti-immigrant, radical-right parties in Europe, the rise of Trumpism in the US and the Brexit vote in the UK.

Agonies of Empire

American Power from Clinton to Biden

Michael Cox, London School of Economics and Political Science

"Michael Cox has long been one of the most intelligent and original scholars of America's grand career on the modern world stage. In this engaging collection of essays, he offers a compelling portrait of an unsettled superpower that is at once an empire and a liberal democracy."

G. JOHN IKENBERRY, PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

"A fascinating critique of American foreign policy since the end of the Cold War by one of Britain's leading analysts."

JOSEPH NYE, AUTHOR OF DO MORALS MATTER? PRESIDENTS AND FOREIGN POLICY FROM FDR TO TRUMP

"Mick Cox's collected essays provide a bounty of smart insights for anyone trying to make sense of the twists and turns in American foreign policy over the past thirty years."

JOHN J. MEARSHEIMER, UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Divided at home and facing a world sceptical of American claims to be the 'indispensable nation' in world politics, it is clear that the next few years will be decisive ones for the United States. But how did the US, which was riding high only 30 years ago, arrive at this critical point?

In this volume, Michael Cox, a leading scholar of American foreign policy, outlines the ways in which five very different American presidents – Clinton, Bush, Obama, Trump and now Biden – have addressed the complex legacies left them by their predecessors while dealing with the longer-term problems of running an empire under increasing stress. In so doing, he sets out a framework for thinking critically about US foreign policy since the end of the Cold War without ever losing sight of the biggest question of all: can America continue to shape world affairs or is it now facing long-term decline?

Snapshots from Home

Mind, Action and Strategy in an Uncertain World

Karin M. Fierke, University of St Andrews

“Exhilaratingly imaginative.”

PETER J. KATZENSTEIN, CORNELL UNIVERSITY

Taking an interdisciplinary approach, this book brings the parallels between quantum physics and ancient Asian traditions – Daoism and Buddhism – to an investigation of mind, action and strategy in conditions of radical uncertainty. Engaging with both theory and real-world problems, it explores what it might mean to successfully navigate the potentials of a post-pandemic world.

The Civil Condition in World Politics

Beyond Tragedy and Utopianism

Edited by Vassilios Paipais, University of St Andrews

Bringing together an international team of contributors, this volume draws on international political theory and intellectual history to rethink the problem of a pluralistic world order. Inspired by the work of international political theorist Nicholas Rengger, the book illuminates the promises and limitations of civility as a sceptical, non-utopian, anti-perfectionist approach to theorising world order that transcends both realist pessimism and liberal utopianism.

Praxis as a Perspective on International Politics

Edited by Gunther Hellmann, Goethe University and Jens Steffek, Technical University of Darmstadt

This collection brings together leading figures in the study of International Relations to explore praxis as a perspective on international politics and law. With its focus on competent judgements, the praxis approach holds the promise to overcome the divide between knowing and acting that marks positivist International Relations theory.

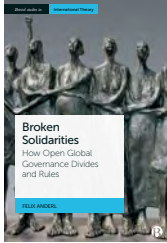

Building on the transdisciplinary work of Friedrich Kratochwil, this book reveals the scope, limits and blind spots of praxis theorising.

Broken Solidarities

How Open Global Governance Divides and Rules

Felix Anderl, Philipps-University Marburg

Felix Anderl's book is a stimulating analysis of the decline of the social movement against the World Bank and the rise of a new form of transnational rule. The book observes international organisations and social movements in their interaction, demonstrating how social movements are divided and ruled in the absence of a ruler.

China's Rise and Rethinking International Relations Theory

Edited by Chengxin Pan, Deakin University and Emilian Kavalski, Jagiellonian University

Bringing together leading scholars from Asia and the West, this book investigates how the dynamics of China's rise in world politics contributes to theory-building in International Relations (IR).

The book demonstrates how the complex and transformative nature of China's advancement is also a point of departure for theoretical innovation and reflection in IR more broadly. In doing so, the volume builds a strong case for a genuinely global and post-Western IR. It contends that 'non-Western' countries should not only be considered potential sources of knowledge production, but also original and legitimate focuses of IR theorising in their own right.

Integrating MENA Countries in a Globalized Economy

Tony Verheijen, The World Bank,
Katarina Staronova, Comenius University
Bratislava, Ibrahim El Ghandour and
Anne-Lucie Lefebvre, The World Bank

A collaboration between practitioners and academic public policy experts, this volume analyses the impact of globalization on civil service systems across the Middle East and North Africa. It presents an analytical model to assess how globalisation influences civil servants and traces the shifting patterns of power and accountability between civil servants, politicians and other actors.

Whistleblowing and Retaliation in the United Nations

Edited by Caroline Hunt-Matthes, Webster
University Geneva and Alexis Bushnell,
National University of Ireland

This illuminating book combines first-hand accounts of United Nations whistleblowers with academic reflections of their experiences. It argues that it is vital for International Organisations (IOs) such as the UN, which was created for the common good, to critically evaluate the mechanisms complicit in silencing these voices, ultimately undermining its purpose and creating unnecessary risk for the UN.

The Limits of Europe

Identities, Spaces, Values

Edited by Russell Foster, King's College London and Jan Grzyski, University of Warsaw

Over recent years, a series of challenges including Brexit, the rise of Euroscepticism and the Eurozone and refugee crises have manifested in landmark moments for European integration.

This edited collection investigates whether these crises are isolated phenomena or symptoms of a deeper malaise across the EU.

Reflections on Post-Marxism

Laclau & Mouffe's Project of Radical Democracy in the 21st Century

Edited by Stuart Sim, Northumbria University

The world has changed dramatically since the emergence of post-Marxism, and a reassessment is needed to determine its significance in the modern world. This book explores the theoretical position of post-Marxism and investigates its significance in recent global political developments such as Brexit, Trump and the rise of the far right. With valuable insights from international contributors across a range of disciplines, the book puts forward a strong case for the continuing relevance of post-Marxism and particularly for Ernesto Laclau and Chantal Mouffe's theory of radical democracy.

Series Editors: Ali Bilgic, Loughborough University, Synne L. Dyvik, University of Sussex, Gunhild Hoogensen Gjorv, UiT The Arctic University of Norway, Thomas Gregory, University of Auckland and Swati Parashar, University of Gothenburg

Expanding the boundaries of International Relations, this series reflects on politics globally with innovative and transdisciplinary perspectives.

With a focus on feminist, lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans and queer activism, the series will examine existing hierarchies, practices and power relations, investigating the often violent effects of these on different peoples, geographies and histories. For more information, see:

Queer Politics in Contemporary Turkey

Paul Gordon Kramer, Nazareth College

Drawing on the words and stories of queer Turkish activists, this book aims to unravel the complexities of queer lives in Turkey. In doing so, it challenges dominant conceptualisations of the queer Turkish experience within critical security discourses.

The book argues that while queer Turks are subjected to unchecked forms of insecurity in their governance, opportunities for emancipatory resistance have emerged alongside these abuses. It identifies the ways in which the state, the family, Turkish Islam and other socially mediated processes and agencies can expose or protect queers from violence in the Turkish community.

Drawing on decolonial perspectives on peace, statehood and development, this illuminating book examines post-liberal statebuilding in Central Asia. It uses ethnographic fieldwork in Southern Kyrgyzstan to offer a detailed examination of community security and peacebuilding discourses and practices.

Through its analysis, the book highlights the problem with assumptions about liberal democracy, modern statehood and capitalist development as the standard template for post-conflict countries, which is widespread and rarely reflected-upon. assumptions about liberal democracy, modern statehood and capitalist development as the standard template for post-conflict countries, which is widespread and rarely reflected upon.

The New Constructivism in International Relations Theory

David M. McCourt, University of California, Davis

"Will become a touchstone for IR theory for years to come."

TY SOLOMON, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

In this book, the author makes the case for new constructivist approaches to International Relations scholarship.

The book traces constructivist work on culture, identity and norms within the historical, geographical and professional contexts of world politics, and reflects on recent innovations in fields including practice theory, relationalism and network analysis. It is both an accessible tour of Constructivism to date and a persuasive declaration for its continuing application and value.

Unmapping the 21st Century

Between Networks and the State

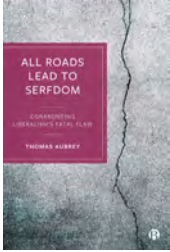

Nicholas Michelsen and Neville Bolt, King's College London

Drawing on post-structural political theory, this book explores two dominant concepts used to make sense of our disturbed reality: the state and the network.

In seeking a better understanding of today's world, this book argues that we need to pull apart the familiar lines of our maps. By looking beneath and across these lines, an 'unmapping' presents new insights and opportunities for a better future.

All Roads Lead To Serfdom

Confronting Liberalism's Fatal Flaw

Thomas Aubrey, Credit Capital Advisory

Current debates within liberal democracies highlight significant issues regarding inequality, political participation and identity.

This book argues that these issues stem from reliance on a utilitarian public policy framework. It examines five key areas of public policy: monetary, private property and liability, the structure of the state, product markets and labour markets. Through its analysis, the book draws on the German ordoliberal tradition of political economy to offer an alternative public policy framework.

Saving Liberalism from Itself

The Spirit of Political Participation

Timothy Stacey, Leiden University

In the wake of populism, Timothy Stacey's book reflects on what is missing from the liberal project with the aim of saving liberalism.

It explains that populists have harnessed myth, ritual, magic and tradition to advance their ambitions, and why opponents need to embrace rather than eschew them. Via examples of liberally minded activists in Vancouver, it presents an accessible theorisation of these quasi-religious concepts in secular life.

Flexible Europe

Differentiated Integration, Fairness, and Democracy

Richard Bellamy, University College London, Sandra Kröger and Marta Lorimer, University of Exeter

“A highly stimulating and innovative take on differentiated integration.”

DIRK LEUFFEN, UNIVERSITY OF KONSTANZ

The European Union (EU) is often portrayed as sacrificing national diversity for European unity. This book explores the alternative of a flexible EU based on differentiated rather than uniform integration. The authors combine normative theory with empirical research on political party actors to assess the desirability and political acceptability of differentiated integration as a means of accommodating heterogeneity in the EU. They examine the circumstances and institutional design needed for flexibility to promote rather than undermine fairness and democracy within and between member states.

The European Union and the United Nations in Global Governance

Madeleine O. Hosli, Leiden University

Written by a leading expert in the field, this book analyses the complex relations between the European Union (EU) as a regional organisation and the United Nations (UN) as an international, global governance institution.

The book explores how collaboration between the EU and the UN has evolved and how the two entities collaborate both structurally and in day-to-day work.

The EU-China Security Paradox

Cooperation Against All Odds?

Julia Gurol, University of Freiburg

"A courageous and urgent venture."

TILMAN MAYER, UNIVERSITY OF BONN

In this analysis, Julia Gurol unpicks the complex security relations between the European Union (EU) and China. She investigates the principles, rationales and shifting dynamics of collaboration on a range of security issues, and their consequences for China, the EU and other regions. She pays particular attention to EU-China relations in the realm of anti-terrorism, anti-piracy and energy security, and disentangles their cooperation efforts in the context of increasing political and economic tensions.

How to Achieve Defence Cooperation in Europe?

The Subregional Approach

Bence Nemeth, King's College London

This timely analysis of security in Europe identifies the factors that enable and hinder the creation of networks of defence cooperation across the continent.

Drawing on three central cases of defence cooperation and a range of other examples, the book develops an account of the structural and situational factors that influence cooperation and provides an instructive response to contentious questions about defence matters in Europe.

Britain and Europe at a Crossroads

The Politics of Anxiety and Transformation

Andrew Ryder, Corvinus University of Budapest

"In a time of anxiety, change and frustration around Brexit, this book offers a salve in the form of an explanation on how we got here."

JO RICHARDSON, DE MONTFORT UNIVERSITY

Developing the conceptual framework of securitisation, Ryder examines the social, cultural and political factors which influenced the UK to take its decision to leave the European Union and the aftermath of this decision. He analyses rhetoric to make sense of the events around Brexit and examines the responses of the main political groupings to provide an analysis of possible futures for British and European politics.

The Gilets Jaunes and the New Social Contract

Charles Devellennes, University of Kent

"Illuminates both our modern condition and the theoretical tradition that has shaped our time."

JAMES MARTEL, SAN FRANCISCO STATE UNIVERSITY

Providing a lively account of the gilets jaunes, the yellow vest movement in France, Devellennes assesses what lessons can be drawn from their activities and the impact for the contemporary relationship between state and citizen. He proposes a new relationship between the state and the individual, and establishes the necessity of rethinking the modern democratic nature of our representative polities.

The Swedish Experiment

The COVID-19 Response and its Controversies

Johann Aucante, Raymond Aron Centre for Sociological and Political Studies (CESPRA)

This book explores Sweden's unique response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

It helps to make sense of the response by defining 'a Swedish model' that incorporates the country's value system underpinning its politics and administration in relation to, among other things, welfare, democracy, civil liberties and respect for expertise. The book also acts as a case study for understanding the moral and normative ways in which different national approaches to the pandemic have been compared.

New Developments in Urban Governance

Rethinking Collaboration in the Age of Austerity

Jonathan S. Davies, De Montfort University et al.

"Provides a critical but also nuanced analysis of how policy agendas, dominated by neoliberal visions and austerity, affect practices of collaborative urban governance."

GILLES PINSON, SCIENCES PO BORDEAUX

Presenting the findings of a major European Social Research Council (ESRC) project into urban austerity governance in eight cities across the world, this book offers comparative reflections on the myriad experiences of collaborative governance and its limitations. With international contributors from across the social sciences, the book discusses ways that citizens, activists and local states collaborate and come into conflict in attempting to build just cities.

The South Asia to Gulf Migration Governance Complex

Edited by Crystal A. Ennis and Nicolas Blarel, Leiden University

ePDF and ePUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

In this book, a team of international contributors examine the often-overlooked complex governance of the South Asia to Gulf migration corridor.

Going beyond state-centric analysis, the contributors present a multilayered account of the 'migration governance complex'. They offer insights not only into the actors involved in the different components of migration governance, but also into the varying ways of interpreting and explaining the meaning and value of these interactions.

The Cruel Optimism of Racial Justice

Nasar Meer, University of Edinburgh

“An essential read in the current reactionary conjuncture and provides us with ways in which to think our past, present and future in more hopeful and just terms.”

AURELIEN MONDON, UNIVERSITY OF BATH

A dominant view of racial justice has long been linked to a ‘cruel optimism’ which normalises social and political outcomes that sustain racial injustice, despite successive governments wielding the means to address it. Researchers, activists and minoritised groups continually identify the drivers of these outcomes, but have grown accustomed to persevering despite strong resistance to change. Nasar Meer argues for the need to move on from perpetual crisis in racial justice to a turning point that might herald a change to deep-seated systems of racism.

Disproportionate Minority Contact and Racism in the US

How We Failed Children of Color

Paul R. Ketchum and B. Mitchell Peck,
University of Oklahoma

"A necessary read for anyone interested in how race intersects with the criminal justice system."

JOHN D. CARL, UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA

This book addresses the issue of colour-blind racism through an examination of the circular logic used by the juvenile justice system to criminalise non-White youth. Drawing on original data, including interviews with court and probation officers and juvenile self-reports, the authors call for a need to understand racial and ethnic inequality in the juvenile justice system from a structural perspective rather than simply at the level of individual bias. This unique research will contribute to larger discussions on how race operates in the United States.

Visiting Immigration Detention

Care and Cruelty in Australia's Asylum Seeker Prisons

Michelle Peterie, University of Sydney

Michelle Peterie's survey of visitors to Australia's detention centres provides new perspectives on its hardline immigration policy. Drawing on more than 70 interviews, the book expands our appreciation of the human costs of incarceration for asylum seekers in the country, and offers lessons for experiences and responses in other countries.

Migration, Health and Inequalities

Critical Activist Research Across Ecuadorean Borders

Roberta Villalón, St John's University

This interdisciplinary activist-research project draws on the experiences of Ecuadoreans to analyse international migration's many impacts on health and wellbeing. It considers the significance of various forms of social inequality and migration and health policies in Ecuador, Spain and the United States, and identifies ways to mitigate negative effects on migrants' health and foster greater equality and social justice.

Navigating the European Migration Regime

Male Migrants, Interrupted Journeys and Precarious Lives

Anna Wyss, Université de Neuchâtel

ePDF and ePUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

Amid the heavy politicisation and problematisation of male migrants in Europe, this ethnographic study casts new light on their experiences, struggles and everyday resistance. This is a sensitive and insightful analysis of how the European migration regime shapes, and is shaped by, migrants' practices.

Temporality in Mobile Lives

Contemporary Asia–Australia Migration and Everyday Time

Shanthi Robertson, Western Sydney University

“Robertson provides us a truly original framework to understand the times of migration.”

BRENDA YEOH, NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

This book casts new light on the complex relationship between migration and time in this innovative analysis of young Asian migrants in Australia. Extensive interviews inform a new conceptual framework and reveal how modern migratory pathways reshape the expected trajectories of migrants' lives and their everyday temporalities, from career pathways to intimate relationships.

Childcare Provision in Neoliberal Times

The Marketisation of Care

Aisling Gallagher, Massey University

As many governments now rely on the market to meet childcare demand, this book opens the 'black box' of childcare markets to closer scrutiny. Drawing from an in-depth study of New Zealand, Gallagher examines key issues around marketised childcare, including the high costs for parents, the varying quality for children and poor remuneration for those who work in the sector.

Feminist Politics in Neoconservative Russia

An Ethnography of Resistance and Resources

Inna Perheentupa, University of Turku

This is an important account of grassroots feminist activism in Russia in the politically turbulent 2010s characterised by authoritarian and conservative trends. Drawing on interviews and rich ethnographic data, the book walks the reader through different feminist practices, revealing their historic and contemporary political echoes. This nuanced and compelling analysis will challenge and decentre Western theory and concepts on feminist social movements.

The Public Sociology of Waste

Myra J. Hird, Queen's University in Canada

Is it possible to tackle waste by recycling, reusing and reducing consumption on an individual level alone? This provocative book critically analyses the widespread narrative around waste as a 'household' issue. Hird offers crucial insights on the implications of how publics currently understand and engage with waste issues, and how sociology can contribute to a 'public imagination' of waste.

Public Sociology As Educational Practice

Challenges, Dialogues and Counter-Publics

Edited by Eurig Scandrett, Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh

*"...vividly embodies public sociology as radical education...
Read it and learn!"*

LAURENCE COX, MAYNOOTH UNIVERSITY

Leading academics take a distinctive new approach to the understanding of public sociology education in this perceptive new resource. Through pedagogical case studies and inter-contributor dialogues, they develop and challenge thinking in the field.

Divided into three sections on the publics, knowledges and practices of public sociology education, it looks beyond the boundaries of academia to deliver fresh responses to key disciplinary questions including the purposes and targets of sociological knowledge.

For students, academics and practitioners, it is a timely and thought-provoking contribution to debate about public sociology education.

Interpreting Religion

Making Sense of Religious Lives

Erin Johnston, Duke University and Vikash Singh, Montclair State University

This edited collection harnesses a diversity of interpretivist perspectives to provide a panoramic view of the production, experiences, contexts and meanings of religion.

Experts from the US, UK, India and China explore religious phenomena using ethnographic, comparative historical, psychosocial and critical theoretical approaches. Each chapter addresses foundational themes in the study of religion – from identity and discourse to ritual, emotion and embodiment. Authors examine dynamic intersections of race, gender, history and the present within the religious traditions of Christianity, Islam, Hinduism and Buddhism.

Cutting boldly across religious traditions and paradigms, the book investigates areas of harmony and contradiction across different interpretive lenses and achieves a richer understanding of the meanings of religion.

An Introduction to Prefigurative Politics

The Future Is Now

Lara Monticelli, Copenhagen Business School

In the aftermath of the financial crisis of 2008, the push to reimagine our society and economy fostered a new wave of social movements from urban gardens to worker-owned co-ops and ecological communities.

These 'real utopias' are locally based and yet transnationally connected, they focus on doing rather than grieving, and are prefiguring alternative futures.

Bringing together an international group of scholars, this edited collection constitutes a comprehensive introduction to prefigurative politics that covers theory, empirical case studies and methodological issues.

This book is a must-read for anyone interested in understanding how progressive social change can thrive despite the multiple crises we are currently confronting.

Post-Corona Capitalism

The Alternatives Ahead

Andreas Nölke, Goethe University Frankfurt

The COVID-19 crisis serves as a Rorschach test. Each social group sees something different in it and the uncertainty around responses to the economic crisis that followed leaves the public overwhelmed. This book cuts through the confusion, dissecting the new post-coronavirus capitalism into several policy areas and spheres of action to inform academic, policy and public discourse. Covering all major infrastructures of contemporary capitalism affected by the pandemic, Nölke deftly analyses the impacts of the crisis on our socioeconomic and political systems. Signposting a new era for global capitalism, he offers alternative options for future economic development in the wake of COVID-19.

Resisting AI

An Anti-Fascist Approach to Artificial Intelligence

Dan McQuillan, Goldsmiths, University of London

Artificial intelligence (AI) is pervasive yet its implications for society are still poorly understood. In this timely call to action, Dan McQuillan provides an analysis of AI's technology and its political effects. He traces the ways that AI resonates with contemporary political and social currents, from global austerity to the rise of the far right. Placing it alongside other modes of ordering, such as bureaucracy and speculative finance, he examines AI's intensification of social crises and states of emergency. Most importantly, he offers the reader an alternative vision of an anti-fascist AI rooted in feminist and decolonial politics, addressing matters of care through mutual aid and solidarity. He invites us to play an active part in AI's structural renewal through mechanisms like workers' and people's councils. Academically rigorous, yet accessible to a socially engaged readership, this unique book will be of interest to all who wish to challenge the social logic of AI by reasserting the importance of the common good.

Dealing in Uncertainty

Insurance in the Age of Finance

Arjen van der Heide, Leiden University

In contemporary capitalist societies, insurance is an important – if still poorly understood – mechanism for pooling resources to face a variety of risks. This book conducts an in-depth investigation of one of the largest and longest-established insurance industries in Europe: British life insurance. The author draws from over 44 oral history interviews to trace how the sector is changed since the 1970s, a period characterised by rampant financialisation and neoliberalisation. Combining insights from social studies of finance and economic sociology, this is an unprecedented study of the evolution of insurance practices and an invaluable contribution to our understanding of financial capitalism.

Ecological Reparation

Repair, Remediation and Resurgence in Social and Environmental Conflict

Dimitris Papadopoulos, University of Nottingham, Maria Puig de la Bellacasa, University of Warwick and Maddalena Tacchetti, University of Nottingham

How do we address the threat of social and environmental destruction while creating and maintaining liveable worlds?

Expert scholars of diverse backgrounds unpack the question in this research-oriented, real-world challenges-focused collection.

The authors explore practices of repairing damaged ecologies across different locations and geographies and propose innovative ideas for the conservation, mending, care and empowerment of human and non-human ecologies.

This groundbreaking collection establishes ecological reparation as an urgent and essential topic of public and scholarly debate.

Moral Gravity

Staying Together at the End of the World

David W. Hill, York St John University

This radical book unsettles how we think about taking responsibility for environmental catastrophe. Providing a novel framework for understanding environmental – or any other mass crisis, Hill deepens and extends ideas of social and moral responsibility and situates them within responses to the Anthropocene.

Being Human During COVID-19

Paul Martin, Warren Pearce, Stevienna de Saille and Kirsty Liddiard, University of Sheffield

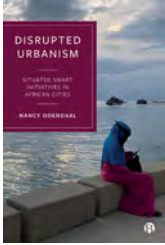

This transdisciplinary collection engages with key issues of social exclusion, inequality, power and knowledge in the context of COVID-19. Putting the spotlight on the lived experiences of marginalised groups from around the world, the authors reframe ongoing debates around the pandemic and highlight how they might lead to new ways of thinking and acting in relation to public policy, culture and the economy.

Disrupted Urbanism

Situated Smart Initiatives in African Cities

Nancy Odendaal, University of Cape Town

The smart city is often promoted as a top-down, technology-driven solution to complex urban issues. This book provides a much-needed alternative view, exploring how 'home-grown' digital disruption, driven and initiated by local actors, upends the mainstream corporate narrative. Drawing on original research conducted in a range of urban African settings, Odendaal shows how these initiatives can lead to meaningful change.

Robots and Immigrants

Who Is Stealing Jobs?

Kostas Maronitis, Leeds Trinity University and
Denny Pencheva, University College London

This book scrutinises the narratives created around stealing jobs, opening new debates on the role of automation and migration policies. The authors reveal how the advances in AI and demands for constant flow of immigrant workers eradicate political and working rights, propagating fears over job theft and ownership.

How Do You Know If You Are Making a Difference?

A Practical Handbook for Public Service Organisations

Sarah Morton, Matter of Focus and University of Edinburgh and Ailsa Cook, Matter of Focus

Why is it hard to know if you are making a difference in public services? What can you do about it? Public services throughout the world face the challenge of tackling complex issues where multiple factors influence change. This book sets out practical and theoretically robust, tried-and-tested approaches to understanding and tracking change that any organisation can use to ensure it makes a difference to the people it cares about.

With case studies from health, community, research, international development and social care, this book shows that with the right tools and techniques, public services can track their contribution to social change and become more efficient and effective.

A Year Like No Other

Life on a Low Income during COVID-19

Ruth Patrick and Maddy Power, University of York, Kayleigh Garthwaite, University of Birmingham, Jim Kaufman, Geoff Page and Katie Pybus, University of York

The COVID-19 national lockdowns made life harder for UK families already living on a low income. Recounting their stories, this book exposes the ways that pre-existing inequalities were amplified during the pandemic. Drawing on the Covid Realities research project, this book sets out all that is wrong with the status quo and offers a powerful agenda for change.

Lived Experiences in the Irish Welfare Space

Joe Whelan, Trinity College Dublin, University of Dublin

Welfare states are a major feature of many societies, but the lived experiences of persons seeking and receiving welfare payments are often overlooked.

Honouring lived experience as valuable, insightful and necessary, this book draws on qualitative interviews with 19 people receiving various working age welfare payments in Ireland. It offers original research findings which contest and inform policy both within Ireland and beyond.

The Foundational Economy and Citizenship

Comparative Perspectives on Civil Repair

Edited by Filippo Barbera, University of Turin and Ian Rees Jones, Cardiff University

"Here are examples of how the things most important for well being are best provided by involving citizens actively in their provision."

ANDREW SAYER, LANCASTER UNIVERSITY

The principles of the modern foundational economy and its role in renewing citizenship and informing public policy are explored for the first time in this collection. With case studies of interventions in key areas of social and economic concern, this book shows how foundational experiments can encourage collective consumption, foster a new outlook on civil society and promote social justice.

Putting Civil Society in its Place

Governance, Metagovernance and Subjectivity

Bob Jessop, Lancaster University

"Deeply impressive and required reading."

COLIN HAY, SCIENCES PO, PARIS

Renowned social and political theorist Bob Jessop explores the idea of civil society as a mode of governance in this bold challenge to current thinking.

Setting out theories of metagovernance and the limits and failures of various styles of governance, he draws on case studies of mobilisations against economic and social problems to lay out lessons for future innovation in civil society.

Analysing the Trust–Transparency Nexus

Multi-Level Governance in the UK, France and Germany

Ian Stafford, Cardiff University, Alistair Cole, Hong Kong Baptist University and Dominic Heinz, Turkish–German University in Istanbul

“Very topical in its nature, the book fills in the existing void in understanding the concepts of trust and transparency within a multi-level context, very much needed in the era of mistrust.”

ANIA ANKNOWSKA, LEEDS BECKETT UNIVERSITY

Is transparency a necessary condition to build and restore citizen and civil society trust in governance and democracy?

This volume addresses the relationship between trust and transparency in the context of multilevel governance. Drawing on fieldwork from the UK, France and Germany, it explores the paradox that trust might require transparency, yet in some instances transparency may undermine trust.

The British welfare state is traditionally understood to be comprised of five main services. This book offers an original take on the role of the state in relation to these services, along with three other areas where institutional services have been developed: employment services, equalities and public services.

It profiles the real problems that need to be addressed and offers inspiration for a better path forward.

Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, flexible working has become the norm for many workers.

This volume examines flexible working using data from 30 European countries. It reveals how flexible working can lead to exploitation, which manifests differently for women and men, for example more care responsibilities or increased working hours.

Facts, Values and the Policy World

Phil Ryan, Carleton University

"This riveting read offers a 'dialogical way' through the tangles of the fact/value dichotomy."

SUSAN T. GARDNER, CAPILANO UNIVERSITY

Many policy analysts believe that rigorous thought should be uncontaminated by values. Policy analysis, however, is about what is worth doing and is therefore inherently values-based.

By showing that values are amenable to critical analysis, this book reimagines the scope and role of policy analysis in contemporary society.

Social Policy, Political Economy and the Social Contract

Jonathan Wistow, Durham University

Positioning social policy within political economy and social contract debates, Wistow draws on empirical evidence to show how the social contract produces longstanding inequitable consequences in relation to health, place and social mobility in England.

It explains that society needs to take ownership of the outcomes it produces and examines the individualism inherent within the political economy.

Matthew J. Quinn, Cardiff University

This book plots a landmark reimagination of governance and public administration, underpinned by sustainable development and civic republicanism.

Using international examples and the author's experience in sustainability governance as a senior UK official, it proposes a new civic bureaucracy which fosters societal engagement and dialogue. It sheds light on debates about the emerging crisis of governance, public bureaucracy and embedding sustainability in governance.

Doing Qualitative Desk-Based Research

A Practical Guide to Writing an Excellent Dissertation

Barbara Bassot, Canterbury Christ Church University

"Finally! A book that provides students with a clear, comprehensive, compassionate, and accessible guide to desk-based qualitative primary research. All dissertation modules should include this book on their reading list."

EMMA MILNE, DURHAM UNIVERSITY

"From coming up with an idea to writing up, this is a brilliant 'how to' guide for those students doing qualitative dissertations from the confines of their desk."

TOM CLARK, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

Are you planning a desk-based qualitative research project, but aren't sure how to get started?

This essential book provides all the guidance and advice you will need to complete your project. Using two key visual pedagogical tools, the Metaphorical Tent and the Research Triangle, the book shows you how to produce vibrant and stimulating in-depth qualitative research that draws on high-quality data readily available via the internet. The book:

- takes you through the research process step by step, from choosing a topic to writing up conclusions;
- examines a wide range of written, visual and audio data sources;
- includes helpful case studies to demonstrate practical application of concepts.

Concise, practical and jam-packed with valuable tips, features and examples, this book will enable you to complete a successful desk-based research project you can be proud of.

Doing Your Research Project with Documents

A Step-by-Step Guide to Take You from Start to Finish

Aimee Grant, Swansea University

"This book should be essential reading for any student embarking, or thinking about embarking, on a dissertation project using qualitative research, as well as their supervisors."

JENNIFER LEIGH, UNIVERSITY OF KENT

"This is a fantastic guide for any dissertation student wanting to work with documents in their research. It will help them to successfully navigate the process from start to finish."

VICTORIA FOSTER, EDGE HILL UNIVERSITY

Students and researchers have an abundance of materials and sources available to them via the internet for use in their projects. However, there is little practical guidance available on the fundamentals of performing qualitative research with documents.

This valuable book enables readers to undertake high-quality, robust research using documents as data. Encouraging critical consideration of research design, the book guides readers step by step through the process of planning and undertaking a research project based on documentary analysis. It covers selecting a research topic and sample through to analysing and writing up the data.

The book includes:

- a wealth of case studies demonstrating how lessons can be applied in practice;
- summary boxes and suggestions for further reading in each chapter to guide learning;
- helpful online resources to facilitate designing your own research.

Accessible and comprehensive, this book will be invaluable for both students and researchers who are new to documentary analysis.

Women in Supramolecular Chemistry

Collectively Crafting the Rhythms of Our Work and Lives in STEM

Jennifer Leigh, University of Kent, et al

ePDF and ePUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

Drawing on research carried out by the Women in Supramolecular Chemistry (WISC) network, this book sets out the extent to which women working in STEM face inequality and discrimination. The authors use approaches more commonly associated with social sciences, such as creative research methods, to shed light on the human experiences lying behind scientific research. They show how this approach helps make sense of difficult personal experiences and to create a culture of change.

Virtual Reality Methods

A Guide for Researchers in the Social Sciences and Humanities

Phil Jones, University of Birmingham and Tess Osborne, University of Groningen, with the participation of Calla Sullivan-Drage, Natasha Keen and Eleanor Gadsby, independent scholars

Since the mid-2010s, Virtual Reality (VR) technology has advanced rapidly. This book explores the many opportunities that VR can offer for humanities and social sciences researchers.

The book provides a user-friendly, non-technical methods guide to using ready-made VR content and 360° video as well as creating custom materials. It examines the advantages and disadvantages of different approaches to using VR, providing helpful, real-world examples of how researchers have used the technology. The insights drawn from this analysis will inspire scholars to explore the possibilities of using VR in their own research projects.

The Strengths Approach in Practice

How it Changes Lives

Avril Bellinger, Plymouth University and Students and Refugees Together (START) and Deirdre Ford, Students and Refugees Together (START)

“This book advances passionate and conceptually sound arguments for applications of strengths approaches to complex social challenges.”

CAROLE ADAMSON, THE UNIVERSITY OF AUCKLAND

Commonly misunderstood, the true power of the strengths approach as a whole-systems approach has been neglected. Informed by a case study from the authors’ work with a unique NGO in the UK, this book illustrates what it really means to adopt a strengths approach in practice. This book will give readers grounds for optimism as well as transferable practices for challenging social injustice.

The Politics of Ailment

A New Approach to Care

Minna Zechner, University of Lapland, Lena Näre, University of Helsinki, Olli Karsio, Tampere University, Antero Olakivi, University of Helsinki, Liina Sointu, Hanna-Kaisa Hopponia, Tampere University and Tiina Vattinen, Age Institute

Deficiencies in old age care are some of the most pressing human rights concerns in mature welfare states. Challenging the ethics of viewing care as a tradeable commodity, this book introduces a novel framework for understanding and analysing social care through the concept of ailment. Providing examples from the British and Finnish welfare states, it demonstrates how ailment shapes societies from the micro to the macro level. Addressing the marketisation of care, the authors bring to light increasing inequalities in care.

A Comparative Study of England and Canada

Jean-Louis Denis, University of Montreal,
Sabrina Germain, University of London,
Catherine Régis, University of Montreal and
Gianluca Veronesi, University of Bristol

"A landmark in the literature of medicine-state relations."

CAROLYN HUGHES TUOHY, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Respected authors from health and legal backgrounds in England and Canada assess the role of medical doctors in reforming publicly funded health services in these two countries. They consider how the high status of the profession uniquely influences reforms.

With reflections on participation since the inception of publicly funded healthcare systems, they ask whether professionals might be considered allies or enemies of policy makers and offer important insights for future health policy and research.

Protecting and Safeguarding Children in Schools

A Multi-Agency Approach

Mary Baginsky, Jenny Driscoll, Carl Purcell, Jill Manthorpe and Ben Hickman, King's College London

Schools play a vital role in safeguarding children and young people, yet there has been little research into how schools identify and respond to child protection concerns, and their engagement with local authority children's services.

This book investigates schools' decision-making processes and involvement in inter-agency working, evaluating the impact of recent policy developments as well as the restructuring of local authority children's services.

Protecting Children, Creating Citizens

Participatory Child Protection Practice in Norway and the United States

Katrin Križ, Emmanuel College Boston

“Križ blends the fields of childhood studies, children’s rights and child protection, offering insights about how children are and can be engaged authentically in child protection practice.”

JILL DUERR BERRICK, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY

This book examines a participatory approach in child protection practices in both Norway and the United States, despite key organisational differences. Križ explores ways that children can be empowered to participate in child protection investigations and decisions after removal from home. She shows how children can be encouraged to develop and express their own opinions and explores tools for child protection workers to negotiate complex boundaries around the inclusion of children in decision making.

Justice in a Time of Austerity

Stories From a System in Crisis

Jon Robins, journalist and author and Daniel Newman, Cardiff University

"A timely and vital exposé of the pressures exerted upon our justice system by a decade of political neglect, giving a much-needed voice to those who, as a result, have found themselves cut off from justice."

THE SECRET BARRISTER

"[This] powerful and important book shows the human impact of austerity ... should be read by all politicians and policy advisers."

THE TIMES

"Successive governments have been keen to emasculate challenge, and suppress the impoverished. Long before austerity, long before COVID-19, right up to the 2021 Budget. No mention of justice, let alone provision. This book has the history, has the contemporary narrative. It is the voice missing from the empty rhetoric of politicians and gives a stark measure of a society without due process."

MICHAEL MANSFIELD QC

How are poverty and social inequality entrenched through a failing justice system? In this important book, Jon Robins and Daniel Newman examine how the lives of people already struggling with problems with their welfare benefits, jobs, housing and immigration are made much harder by cuts to legal aid and the failings of our creaking justice system.

Over the course of 12 months, the authors carried out interviews on the ground with people as they were caught up in the justice system, in a range of settings such as foodbanks in a church hall in a wealthy part of London; a community centre in a former mining town; a homeless shelter for rough sleepers in Birmingham; and a destitution service for asylum seekers in a city on the south coast, as well as in courts and advice agencies up and down the country. The authors argue that a failure to access justice all too often represents a catastrophic step in the life of the person concerned and their family.

This powerful, yet moving, account humanises the hostile political debates that surround legal aid and reveals what access to justice really means in Austerity Britain.

Refugee Law

Colin Yeo, Garden Court Chambers and Free Movement

The word 'refugee' is both evocative and contested; it means different things to different people.

This concise and engaging book follows the structure of the UN Refugee Convention of 1951 to explore international refugee law. Colin Yeo draws on his experience as an immigration barrister to explain the present-day legal framework for global refugee protection. Chapters consider:

- Key Convention elements including well-founded fear and persecution;
- the loss of refugee status and exclusion;
- the rights of refugees;
- state responses to refugee claims.

Communicating important legal concepts in an approachable way, this is an essential guide for students, lawyers and non-specialists.

Deprivation of Liberty in the Shadows of the Institution

Lucy Series, Cardiff University

ePDF and ePUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC licence.

Placing the 2014 UK Supreme Court ruling on the meaning of ‘deprivation of liberty’ in its social, historical and global context, this book presents a sociolegal analysis of social care detention in the post-carceral era. Drawing from disability rights law and the meanings of ‘home’ and ‘institution’, it proposes solutions to the ruling’s paradoxical implications.

Death, Family and the Law

The Contemporary Inquest in Context

Edward Kirton-Darling, University of Kent

When a death is investigated by a coroner, what is the place of the family in that process?

This book develops a nuanced analysis of the contemporary inquest system in England and Wales. Excerpts of conversations with coroners and officers offer real insights into how the family is perceived and how they shape the investigation into a death.

Reforming the UK's Citizenship Test

Building Bridges, Not Barriers

Thom Brooks, Durham University

"An important addition to literature on British citizenship which provides a much-needed critique of the citizenship test."

DEVYANI PRABHAT, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

Thom Brooks combines first-hand knowledge of taking the UK's citizenship test and in-depth interviews with key figures, to expose the test as ineffective and a barrier to citizenship. With the launch of a new immigration system post-Brexit, he offers recommendations for transforming the UK's citizenship text into a 'bridge to citizenship' which fosters greater inclusion and integration.

Experiments in Automating Immigration Systems

Joe Tomlinson, University of York and Public Law Project and Jack Maxwell, Public Law Project

"Timely and important. Three detailed and persuasive case studies show the challenges for regulation and redress in this area."

OLIVER BUTLER, UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

Exploring three different automated immigration systems, this book identifies a pattern of risky experimentation with automated systems in the Home Office.

Assessing the consequences of automation, the book argues that a precautionary approach is essential to ensuring that society benefits from government automation without exposing individuals to unacceptable risks.

Experiences of Criminal Justice

Perspectives From Wales on a System in Crisis

Daniel Newman and Roxanna Dehaghani,
Cardiff University

“A thought-provoking book that policy makers must read to ensure the mistakes of austerity are not repeated.”

ED JOHNSTON, UNIVERSITY OF THE WEST OF ENGLAND

Austerity continues to impact the criminal justice process in England and Wales. Drawing on first-hand accounts of police officers, solicitors, barristers, prison workers, suspects, convicts and their families in South Wales, this book uncovers how these affected individuals navigate the challenges caused by austerity, what has changed and what can be done to improve the criminal justice system in Wales.

Combatting Disability Harassment at Work

Human Rights in Practice

Lucy-Ann Buckley, NUI Galway

Disabled people report high levels of harassment worldwide. This book focuses on legal measures to combat disability harassment at work. It sets disability harassment in its international context and confronts the lack of empirical information by evaluating the Irish legal framework in practice.

It explores the capacity of the law to address intersectional harassment, particularly that faced by disabled women, and outlines the barriers to effective legal solutions.

Chasing the Mafia

'Ndrangheta Memories and Journeys

Anna Sergi, University of Essex

The 'ndrangheta – the Italian Calabrian mafia – is one of wealthiest and most powerful criminal organisations today. It is considered Italy's most powerful mafia; it's not only the main object of concern for antimafia units in Italy, but also joint investigative teams in Europe and beyond.

Combining autobiography, travel ethnography, memoir, academic rigour and investigative journalism, this book provides a global outlook to the 'ndrangheta, taking the reader to small villages and locations in Italy and abroad to Australia, North America and Argentina.

The Policing Mind

Developing Trauma Resilience for a New Era

Jessica K. Miller, University of Cambridge

“A vital reference for anyone interested in the wellbeing of law enforcement and consequently the safety and wellbeing of the public.”

NEIL BASU QPM, ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER FOR SPECIALIST OPERATIONS IN THE METROPOLITAN POLICE SERVICE

How does it feel to be a police officer in the UK? Jessica Miller uses the most recent neuroscience and real-life examples to explore risks to individual resilience, such as trauma exposure and burnout. A compulsory read for anyone with an interest in policing, the book offers practical, easy-to-follow resilience techniques. It closes with policy and operational recommendations to equip police officers with skills to face crime in a post-COVID world.

New Horizons in Criminology

Series Editor: Andrew Millie, Edge Hill University

This series provides concise authoritative texts which reflect cutting-edge thought and theoretical development with an international scope. These short accessible texts are written so that the non-specialist academic, student or practitioner can understand them with clear explanations of principles and developments before a more in-depth exploration of the subject. ## Redemptive Criminology

Aaron Pycroft, University of Portsmouth and
Clemens Bartollas, University of Northern Iowa

Drawing on criminology, philosophy and theology, this text develops a theory of 'redemptive criminology' that could revolutionise the rehabilitation system. Challenging concepts and practices of rehabilitation, it offers new insights into punishment and retribution and explores the connections between victims, perpetrators and the community.

Transnational Criminology

Trafficking and Global Criminal Markets

Simon Mackenzie, Victoria University of Wellington

"Provides a theory of transnational illicit markets that convincingly links local practices that are as banal as they are evil with the globalization of indifference that underpins them."

JAMES SHEPTYCKI, YORK UNIVERSITY, TORONTO

This pioneering study looks across key trafficking crimes from human trafficking to drug dealing and black markets in wildlife, to develop a social theory of transnational criminal markets. Revealing how traffickers think of their illegal enterprises as 'just business', Mackenzie draws broader lessons for the ways forward in understanding criminality in this emerging field.

A Criminology Of Narrative Fiction

Rafe McGregor, Edge Hill University

"McGregor's massively skilled and imaginative synthesis of theories and paradigms – narrative and more – is the best kind of contemporary criminology."

LOIS PRESSER, UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE

"An enjoyable, interesting and focused text that will spark debate and discussion ... worth reading."

CRIME, MEDIA, CULTURE

This accessible and authoritative book assesses the neglected value of fictional narratives in criminology as a tool for understanding, explaining and reducing crime and social harm.

With examples of complex narratives across film, television, novels and graphic novels, it demonstrates for the first time the criminological potential of fiction around the world. For academics, students and practitioners, it is a thought-provoking critical analysis that establishes a new theory of the criminological value of fiction.

Challenges in Mental Health and Policing

Key Themes and Perspectives

Ian Cummins, University of Salford

Police officers deal with mental illness-related incidents on an almost daily basis. Ian Cummins explores how factors such as deinstitutionalisation, community care failings and, more recently, welfare retrenchment policies have led to this situation. He then considers how police officers should be supported by community mental health agencies to make confident and correct decisions, and to ensure that the individuals they encounter receive support from the most appropriate services.

Minority Ethnic Prisoners and the COVID-19 Lockdown

Issues, Impacts and Implications

Avril Brandon, Maynooth University and Gavin Dingwall, De Montfort University

"Thoroughly researched and expertly written, this book makes a vital contribution to the battle for racial equity in criminal justice. [it] will have a lasting – and truly global – impact."

RT. HON. DAVID LAMMY MP, SHADOW SECRETARY OF STATE FOR JUSTICE

If prison regimes had continued as normal during the COVID-19 lockdown, social distancing would have been impossible. Therefore, sweeping restrictions were imposed confining prisoners to their cells, cancelling communal activity and prohibiting visits from family and friends.

This insightful book identifies the risks posed by prison lockdowns to minority ethnic prisoners, foreign national prisoners and prisoners from Traveller and Roma communities across the UK and the Republic of Ireland. It documents the unequal impacts on their mental and physical health, feelings of isolation and fear, access to services and contact with visitors.

The legacy of the lockdown will be profound. This book exposes the long-term significance and impact on minority ethnic prisoners.

Injustice and Prophecy in the Age of Mass Incarceration

The Politics of Sanity

Andrew Skotnicki, Manhattan College

Why do the UK and US disproportionately incarcerate the mentally ill? Via multiple re-framings of the question—theological, socioeconomic, and psychological—Andrew Skotnicki diagnoses a 'persecution of the prophetic' at the heart of the contemporary criminal justice system.

This interdisciplinary book considers the increasingly intractable issue of mass incarceration and invites a new, collaborative conversation on penal reform as a fundamentally 'life-affirming' project.

Contemporary Intersectional Criminology in the UK

Examining the Boundaries of Intersectionality and Crime

Jane Healy, Bournemouth University and
Ben Colliver, Birmingham City University

Experts demonstrate the value of applying intersectionality to criminology in this first collection of its kind. They set out the theory's application in relation to race, gender, class and age, and explore a range of experiences of victimisation, hate crimes and harm. In doing so, the book refreshes approaches to criminology and pushes intersectionality into the research mainstream.

End of the Road

Reimagining the Street as the Heart of the City

William Riggs, University of San Francisco

"Over the past half century, many of our streets have been transformed into vehicle sewers, built and rebuilt around the sole criteria of moving cars and trucks as quickly as possible. This useful book reminds us that streets are for more than just motion: they are the primary social space of our communities, and their design contributes markedly to the growth or decline of our society."

JEFF SPECK, CITY PLANNER AND AUTHOR, WALKABLE CITY

"Streets are the lifelines of our communities and our societies. In William Riggs's telling, we made a big mistake handing over this critical piece of social infrastructure for moving and storing cars. It's now time to retake such valuable space not just for walking and biking, but for dining, shopping, living and working, making it part of more vibrant and livable communities."

RICHARD FLORIDA, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, AUTHOR OF THE RISE OF THE CREATIVE CLASS

What is a street? Is it a living ecosystem, a public space, a social space, an economic space or a combination of these? This book offers a unique look at streets as locations that can evolve to support the economic, social, cultural and natural aspects of cities.

Using modern urban design examples, it challenges readers to focus not only on the liveability and travel benefits of roads, but on how the power of streets can be harnessed. In so doing, it shapes more dynamic spaces for walking, biking and living, and stimulates urban vitality and community regeneration, encouraging us to make changes in our own communities.

The Caring City

Ethics of Urban Design

Juliet Davis, Cardiff University

"This unique, timely book shows how urban design can change for the better if it recognises interdependence and dependence as basic to how cities are organised – in short, by becoming care-full."

CHRISTOPHER GROVES, CARDIFF UNIVERSITY

Davis sets out a fresh and powerful new theory of urban development and management in this stimulating book. She draws on empirical cases to show how a more ethical and caring approach can improve built environments and communities, correct issues of inequality and exclusion and improve the general wellbeing of the people who live in our cities.

Inside High-Rise Housing

Condominium and Home in the Vertical City

Megan Nethercote, RMIT University

Informed by residents' accounts of Australian high-rise living, this book shows how legal and physical architectures fuse in ways that jeopardise residents' experience of home and stigmatises renters.

As cities sprawl skywards and private renting expands, this compelling geographic analysis of property identifies high-rise development's overlooked hand in social segregation and urban fragmentation, and raises bold questions about the condominium's prospects.

Spatializing Marcuse

Critical Theory for Contemporary Times

Margath Walker, University of Louisville

Margath A. Walker revisits the important work of philosopher Herbert Marcuse to establish new perspectives on contemporary geopolitics. From individual to societal scales, the book applies his theories to pressing real-world issues like resistance and immigration, and shows how Marcuse's philosophies could provide the tools to overturn the status quo.

Spaces and Practices of Justice

Series Editors: Agatha Herman, Cardiff University

The geographies of justice are a vibrant and growing area of academic research, which investigate the spatialities of (in)justice and its impacts on practices, relations, discourses and experiences. This book series focuses on the intersections between spaces and practices to provide innovative and important interventions on examples of real-world (in)justice. ## Environmental Justice and Peacebuilding

Integrating Nature in Policy and Practice

Rebecca Farnum, Syracuse University London

Examining the role of the environment in post-war societies, this book challenges existing approaches towards peacebuilding by providing a new framework for theory and action that foregrounds environmental justice as a central tool in peacebuilding processes.

Using case studies from Rwanda, the Balkans, Lebanon, Kuwait and South Africa, it shows how we can better harness nature's potential to transform peacebuilding in a way that places equitable sustainability, vulnerable communities and future generations at the fore of effective response.

Realism and the Climate Crisis

Hope for Life

John Foster, Lancaster University

"It is a long time since I read a book with such provocative power. It will be talked about. More than that, it may be literally vital."

RUPERT READ, UNIVERSITY OF EAST ANGLIA AND AUTHOR OF PARENTS FOR A FUTURE

In the teeth of climate emergency, hope has to remain possible, because life insists on it. But hope also has to be realistic. Fighting for the future of life is now a tragic necessity and this book argues when enough people make that connection, they also make possible the unprecedented kind of transformation that we need.

Beyond Climate Fixes

From Public Controversy to System Change

Les Levidow, The Open University

'System Change Not Climate Change' summarises many climate protestors' calls for low-carbon, resource-light and socially just transformative mobilisations.

This book argues that the current strategies for climate change mitigation perpetuate environmental harm. It explores alternative policies and develops critical concepts through case studies such as GM crops, biofuels, waste incineration and Green New Deal agendas.

The Short Guide to International Development

Nick Sage, University of Northampton

International development is a vibrant, interdisciplinary area of the social sciences. This Short Guide offers a uniquely succinct and balanced account of this politically charged subject.

Designed to introduce a wide readership to international development, the book:

- considers how far the field has been reconfigured over time and to what extent it is likely to change in the future;
- reviews contemporary topics including tourism, migration and digital technologies;
- includes distinctive international case studies and examples.

Refugees, Self-Reliance, Development

A Critical History

Evan Easton-Calabria, University of Oxford

Evan Easton-Calabria's critical history of refugee self-reliance assistance brings new dimensions to refugee and international development studies.

With five case studies from Greece, Tanzania, Pakistan, Uganda and Egypt, the book tracks refugee self-reliance as a malleable concept used to pursue ulterior interests. It reshapes understandings of refugee self-reliance and delivers important messages for contemporary policy making.

The Rise of the Infrastructure State

How US-China Rivalry Shapes Politics and Place Worldwide

Edited by Seth Schindler, University of Manchester and Jessica DiCarlo, University of British Columbia

Wide-ranging and even-handed, this book offers a fresh interpretation of the territorial logic of US-China rivalry, and explores what it means for countries across Eurasia, Africa and Latin America.

The chapters demonstrate that many countries navigate the global infrastructure boom by articulating novel spatial objectives and implementing political and economic reforms.

The Gendered Face of COVID-19 in the Global South

The Development, Gender and Health Nexus

Jean Grugel, Matt Barlow, Tallulah Lines, University of York, Maria Eugenia Giraudo, Durham University and Jessica Omukuti, University of York

This important book draws on research across sub-Saharan Africa and Latin America to assess what the COVID-19 pandemic means for gender inequalities in the Global South, examining how threats to equitable development will impact the most marginalised and at-risk women and girls in particular. It is a guide to stimulate the important debate about how to promote women's rights during the management and recovery phases of the pandemic.

Edited by Gerard McCann, St. Mary's University College, Nita Mishra, University College Cork, and Pádraig Carmody, Trinity College Dublin

ePDF and ePUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

This book examines the unique implications of the pandemic for regions and communities in the Global South.

With international contributors from a variety of disciplines including health, economics and geography, the book investigates the pandemic's effects on development, medicine, gender (in)equality and human rights among other issues. Its analysis illuminates further subsequent crises of interconnection, a pervasive health provision crisis and a subsequent rise in socioeconomic inequality.

Rural Places and Planning

Stories from the Global Countryside

Menelaos Gkartziou, Newcastle University,
Nick Gallent
and Mark Scott, University College London

"A fresh and stimulating read."

MICHAEL WOODS, ABERYSTWYTH UNIVERSITY

This book provides a compact analysis, for students and early-career practitioners, of the critical connections between place capitals and the broader ideas and practices of planning, seeded within rural communities. It looks across 12 international cases, examining the values that guide the pursuit of the 'good countryside'. The book presents rural planning – rooted in imagination and reflecting key values – as being embedded in the life of particular places, dealing with critical challenges across housing, services, economy, natural systems, climate action and community wellbeing in ways that are integrated and recognise broader placemaking needs. It introduces the breadth of the discipline, presenting examples of what planning means and what it can achieve in different rural places.

Social Housing, Wellbeing and Welfare

James Gregory, University of Birmingham

The growing demand for social housing is one of the most pressing public issues in Britain today, and this book analyses its role and value.

Anchored in a discussion of different approaches to the measurement of wellbeing, the author explores how these perspectives influence our views of the meaning, value and purpose of social housing in today's welfare state.

Participatory Practice Second Edition

Community-based Action for Transformative Change

Margaret Ledwith, University of Cumbria and Jane Springett, Liverpool John Moores University

"Presents a sustained challenge to governments and international organisations which claim to be signed up to people's participation ... this deeply thoughtful book ... is a very welcome addition to the impressive canon being developed by the authors."

GARY CRAIG, INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

"Participatory research and popular education are key means to uncovering 'knowledge as if people mattered'. This superb book enriches our understanding of these areas, building on them to create an inclusive – and enticing – world view."

ALEX SCOTT-SAMUEL, UNIVERSITY OF LIVERPOOL

"Provides an interesting and important approach to action research. Well-written and engaging text."

KATE BLACK, UNIVERSITY OF CHESTER

In this second edition of a bestselling book, the authors' unique, holistic and radical perspective on participatory practice has been updated to reflect advances made in the past decade, the impact of neoliberalism and austerity and the challenges of climate change and the pandemic. Bridging the divide between community development ideas and practice, over half of this innovative book comprises new content with updated features including:

- reflection questions;
- key points highlighted throughout each chapter;
- a glossary of terms.

The authors argue that transformative practice begins with everyday stories about people's lives and that practical theory generated from these narratives is the best way to inform both policy and practice. This long-awaited second edition will be of interest to academics and community-based practitioners working in a range of settings, including health and education.

The Short Guide to Community Development 3rd Edition

Alison Gilchrist, Community Development Consultant and Marilyn Taylor, University of the West of England

“An extremely useful publication, which presents some refreshingly straightforward observations, whilst acknowledging the complexity of the politics and the practice. I will recommend it to students.”

MAE SHAW, INSTITUTE OF EDUCATION, UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

The only up-to-date, accessibly written short guide to community development, this third edition offers an invaluable and authoritative introduction. Fully updated to reflect changes in policy, practice, economics and culture, it will equip readers with an understanding of the history and theory of community development, as well as practical guidance on how to do it. This is a key text for all students and practitioners working with communities. It includes:

- a broad overview of core themes, concepts, basic practices and key issues in community development;
- an analysis of the impact of COVID-19 on community life and wellbeing, along with the implications for longer-term community support;
- additional brand-new content on the pressing issues of democratic decline, social fragmentation and isolation, social care pressures, technological developments and climate change.

Journals

Our journals programme continues to go from strength to strength, with the list growing substantially in recent years. We now publish 18 titles across the social sciences, many of them interdisciplinary in focus.

This year we are celebrating the 50th anniversary of Policy & Politics. It has been wonderful watching this journal grow into a world-leading publication in Politics and Public Administration which now has an Impact Factor of 3.75. We are also celebrating ten years of Critical and Radical Social Work with a series of Special Issues publishing throughout the year.

We are continuing to develop our Open Access offering, and are delighted to be launching our first Open Access title, Global Social Challenges Journal in 2022 (see pages 5 and 6). This mission-driven journal will address the most urgent and complex global social challenges by drawing together accessible international scholarship across the disciplines. In addition, we are developing new business models to help transform our subscription journal content to Open Access, including offering pilot Read and Publish deals.

Spring 2022 will see the first issue of our new journal Global Political Economy and the relaunch of Justice, Power and Resistance. Our portfolio is set to grow even further later in the year with the launch of Consumption and Society. Other titles are in development, and we are planning a range of Special Issues in response to COVID-19.

Consumption and Society

Volume 1 | Issue 1 | 2022

Co-Editors: Marlyne Sahakian, University of Geneva, Switzerland, Stefan Wahlen, University of Giessen, Germany and Daniel Welch, University of Manchester, UK

"Consumption is an increasingly important part of contemporary life, contributing to the most urgent problems facing the globe – climate destabilization, inequality, and the failures of capitalism. Scholars' previous paradigms for understanding consumption are increasingly inadequate, as we grapple with profound changes to how people live. This new journal will be an important outlet for the latest theory and research, and will help us to redefine the field."

PROFESSOR JULIET SCHOR, BOSTON COLLEGE, US

We are pleased to announce an exciting addition to the Bristol University Press journals list for 2022: Consumption and Society. This journal will publish high-quality, original peer-reviewed articles that advance understandings of consumption as a societal phenomenon, embedded in, and constitutive of, socioeconomic, material and cultural configurations.

The field of consumption studies was an early touchstone for major debates on macrosocial change, especially around the issues of globalisation and aestheticisation. Following in this tradition, Consumption and Society aims to revitalise the relevance of consumption studies for the societal challenges of the 21st century. The journal contributes to debates on contested aspects of consumption, such as environmental impacts, digitalisation, the shifting balance of collective versus private consumption, commodification and inequalities. The journal welcomes theoretical, methodological and empirical contributions to the study of consumption in relation to a wide range of topics, such as: environmental and social sustainability; political and ethical consumption; gender; religion; social movements; food and eating; energy and material resource consumption; mobility; tourism; music; the arts; fashion; embodiment; health; technology, among others. Diverse methodological and theoretical approaches to studying consumption are welcome.

Consumption and Society is affiliated with the European Sociological Association's Research Network on Sociology of Consumption (ESA RN5) and the Sustainable Consumption Research & Action Initiative (SCORAI) Europe, as well as the British Sociological Association's Consumption Study Group. A key feature of the journal will be to reflect the pluralism of these networks.

Associate Editors: David Bailey, University of Birmingham, UK, Bernd Bonfert, Cardiff University, UK, Gareth Bryant, University of Sydney, Australia, Inga Rademacher, King's College London, UK, Roberto Roccu, King's College London, UK, Chandrima Roy, University of Leicester, UK, Saori Shibata, Leiden University, Netherlands, Yuliya Yurchenko, University of Greenwich, UK

"This journal is the central milestone in the coming of age of critical political economy, and its agenda of elucidating the theme of emancipatory praxis."

ANGELA WIGGER, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR GLOBAL POLITICAL ECONOMY, RADBOD UNIVERSITY, THE NETHERLANDS

Global Political Economy is the much-anticipated journal for the discipline of global political economy, with an explicit intention of cross-disciplinarity, spanning international relations, sociology, feminism and gender studies, political science, business studies, science and technology studies, communications, economics, geography and more, encouraging debates and discussions across these arenas.

The journal will publish work discussing issues that concern people, whether inside the academy or outside of it, looking at the global political economy and its systemic contradictions, constant crises and upheaval. Global Political Economy will bring fresh insights into complex and often unseen modes, forms and operations of global power relations, social forces and historical change.

Co-Editors: Jon Burnett, Swansea University, UK,
Ida Nafstad, Lund University, Sweden and Lisa White, Liverpool John
Moore's University, UK

Consulting Editor: Vicky Canning, University of Bristol, UK

We are pleased to announce an exciting addition to the Policy Press journals list for 2022: Justice, Power and Resistance (JPR). JPR is the journal of the European Group for the Study of Deviance and Social Control and is currently published by EG Press. We are delighted to be relaunching the journal with a special double issue: Pandemics, Policing and Protest.

Justice, Power and Resistance is an international, peer-reviewed journal promoting critical analysis and connecting theory, politics and activism. Working towards social justice, state accountability and decarceration, the journal is primarily a vehicle to make accessible and advance challenging research and scholarship that can be utilised to critically inform contemporary debates and policies.

"Amid the resurgence of interest in work and labour around the world, this new journal, with its impressive editorial team, is a promising addition to the field."

RUTH MILKMAN CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK GRADUATE CENTER, USA

Work in the Global Economy is an interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal that promotes understanding of work, and connections to work, in all forms and dimensions. This can mean a focus on labour processes, labour markets, labour organising and labour reproduction.

The editors welcome wide-ranging contributions that extend and deepen connections between all aspects of the division of labour: from the production networks that underpin the global economy, to the gendered and racial divides that shape how work is allocated and organised.

The launch double issue was published in October 2021 and is available online.
