Spring/Summer 2021

Welcome

2021 marks Policy Press' 25th anniversary and 5 years since Bristol University Press' inception.

It is a challenging time to celebrate such milestones, yet in reflecting on our progress we strengthened our determination to support positive social change. Our publishing, culture and practice over 25 years demonstrates our team's values and concerns which I believe are ever-more needed in these difficult times.

Several initiatives show our 'publishing with a purpose' ethos:

- Rapid Responses and COVID-19 Collection are new interventions to influence thinking, policy and practice. Written by leading scholars, policy makers, charity workers and activists, the digital-only Rapid Responses publish in just 6-8 weeks, while the COVID-19 Collection offers cross-disciplinary perspectives on the pandemic.
- Our commitment to sustainable Open Access (OA) through Gold and Green routes is crucial to opening up evidence and analysis to researchers, practitioners and policy makers around the globe. Our Research4Life partnership is also vital, giving free or low-cost access to all our work to low-income countries.
- Equality, diversity and inclusion (EDI) has been fundamental to our ethos for 25 years and our five-year strategy underpins this commitment. Diversity of thought, belief and background of our authors, editors and staff enable us to publish a wide range of voices that challenge accepted norms and thinking.

- As a publisher focused on addressing global social challenges, we were early signatories to the recent UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) Publishers Compact, a collaboration between the United Nations and the International Publishers Association to accelerate progress to achieve the SDGs by 2030.

I hope that you find much of interest in this catalogue and I wish you a safe and productive 2021.

The Mutant Project

Inside the Global Race to Genetically Modify Humans

Eben Kirksey, Deakin University

"A riveting jaunt to the cliff-edge of the future, where scientists, engineers, patients and biohackers struggle over the power, function and meaning of human gene editing. Empathetic, provocative and probing, it is a must read."

ALONDRA NELSON, HAROLD F. LINDER PROFESSOR, INSTITUTE FOR ADVANCED STUDY AND AUTHOR OF THE SOCIAL LIFE OF DNA

"In this thought-provoking and well-researched book, Eben Kirksey wrestles anew with the oldest of questions – what it means to be human, and what our relationship is with technology. There are no easy answers, but the journey could change your life."

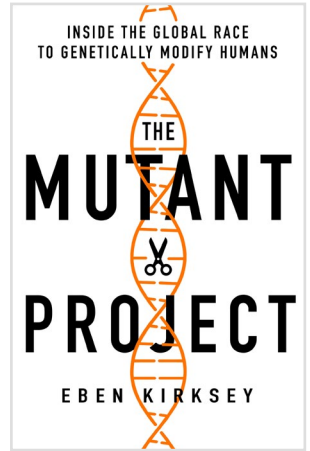

MARK LYNAS, AUTHOR OF SEEDS OF SCIENCE: WHY WE GOT IT SO WRONG ON GMOS

An anthropologist visits the frontiers of genetics, medicine and technology to ask: whose values are guiding gene-editing experiments, and what are the implications for humanity?

At a conference in Hong Kong in November 2018, Dr Jiankui He announced that he had created the first genetically modified babies – twin girls named Lulu and Nana – sending shockwaves around the world. A year later, a Chinese court sentenced Dr He to three years in prison for 'illegal medical practice'.

As scientists elsewhere start to catch up with China's vast genetic research programme, gene editing is fuelling an innovation economy that threatens to widen racial and economic inequality. Fundamental questions about science, health and social justice are at stake. Who gets access to gene-editing technologies? As countries loosen regulations around the globe, can we shape research agendas to promote an ethical and fair society?

Professor Eben Kirksey takes us on a groundbreaking journey to meet the key scientists, lobbyists and entrepreneurs who are bringing cutting-edge genetic modification tools like CRISPR to your local clinic. He also ventures beyond the scientific echo chamber, talking to doctors, hackers, chronically ill patients, disabled scholars and activists and who have alternative visions of a genetically modified future for humanity. The Mutant Project empowers us to ask the right questions, uncover the truth and navigate this new era of scientific enquiry.

Radical Empathy

Finding a Path to Bridging Racial Divides

Terri E. Givens, Centre for Higher Education

"Radical empathy, integrating, actually requiring, empathy for self along with others, and prioritizing action, is exactly what our culture needs most to get closer to living our ideals."

ELISA CAMAHORT PAGE, INDEPENDENT CONSULTANT

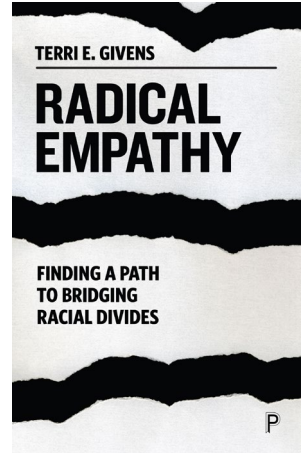

"With a background not that different from her likely readership, Dr Givens outlines a difficult path to integration: Radical Empathy, one I profoundly believe in. If we are to heal the wounds of the world, we will only do it if we first connect, and then understand."

CHUCK PEZESKI, WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

"Many people and companies are all talk and no action. Givens shares her story and perspective while blending in her deep research and experience on racial inequity. This is the playbook for how to heal our rifts and better connect with each other."

MARIA ROSS, RED SLICE, PODCAST HOST, AND AUTHOR OF THE EMPATHY EDGE

In the USA, political developments in the 21st century have shown that deep racial divides remain. The persistence of inequality indicates the stubborn resilience of the institutions that maintain white supremacy. To bridge our divides, renowned political scientist Terri Givens calls for 'radical empathy' - moving beyond an understanding of others' lives and pain to understand the origins of our biases, including internalized oppression. Deftly weaving together her own experiences with the political, she offers practical steps to call out racism and bring about radical social change.

What Have Charities Ever Done for Us?

The Stories Behind the Headlines

Stephen Cook, journalist and Tania Mason, freelance journalist, editor and events producer

"A comprehensive sequence of deep dives into the vital contribution of charities across the UK, enhanced by a range of robust and differing stakeholder perspectives."

DAME MARY MARSH, CHAIR OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES, RCPCH
(ROYAL COLLEGE OF PAEDIATRICS AND CHILD HEALTH)

"A useful and timely reminder of the many ways in which charities support the wellbeing of people in Britain, both in crisis and out of it. Packed with data, and information behind the data, on the evolution of the sector over recent decades and its condition today, a vital resource for anyone who cares about the future of charity in the UK."

GUS O'DONNELL, FRONTIER ECONOMICS AND PRO BONO ECONOMICS

When the coronavirus pandemic took hold early in 2020, charities were among the first to respond to the resulting social and economic distress. But recent scandals and a more critical climate have overshadowed the vital role they play. This book rebalances the debate, using case studies and interviews to illustrate how charities support people and communities, foster heritage and culture and pioneer responses to crucial social, ethical and environmental questions.

It also sets the historical context, examines cases that have attracted criticisms, analyses the political response and considers how the governance, transparency and independence of charities could be improved. Charities at their best are the conscience of society and benefit most people at some point in their lives. This book brings to life the breadth and depth of their work and the contribution they make to social progress.

The Forgotten City

Rethinking Digital Living for Our People and the Planet

Phil Allmendinger, University of Cambridge

"A vitally needed corrective to so much of the unthinking smart cityism out there promising the taming of wicked urban planning problems. Be distracted by this engaging book instead of your mobile phone or laptop."

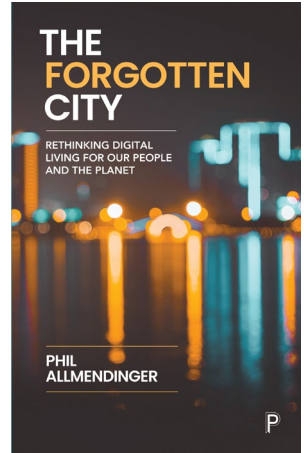

NICHOLAS A. PHELPS, UNIVERSITY OF MELBOURNE

"Phil Allmendinger is arguably the leading planning theorist of his generation. When he now takes on some of the most burning questions in urban planning and development in a highly accessible format, this promises to become a book that will be at the centre of international debates on possible responses to the threats and promises of the smart city"

JONATHAN METZGER, KTH ROYAL INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

We all want cities, where more than half of the world's population currently live, to be just, successful, clean, fair, green, sustainable, safe, healthy and affordable. Will 'smart cities' help achieve these aspirations or undermine them in the time of COVID-19? Phil Allmendinger, a world expert on cities, development and urban governance, takes a critical approach to the role of 'smart' in future cities and the relationship with city development.

Considering how technology can support active citizenship, he challenges the commercial drivers of big tech and warns that these, not developments for 'social good', may dominate. Focusing on the dangers posed by social media, the platform economy and AI, he sets out what those making decisions on city development need to understand in order to save the planet through active politics and healthy cities.

Justice in a Time of Austerity

Stories from a System in Crisis

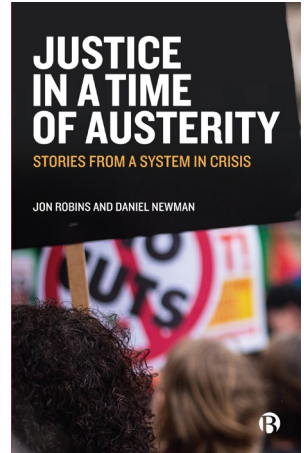

Jon Robins, freelance journalist, author and journalism lecturer and Daniel Newman, Cardiff University

"A valuable contribution to debates on access to justice beyond academia with an interesting and engaging style of vignettes to tell a bigger story."

LUCY WELSH, UNIVERSITY OF SUSSEX

How are poverty and social inequality becoming entrenched through a failing civil justice system? Jon Robins and Dan Newman combine investigative journalism and academic scholarship to examine how the lives of people suffering problems with benefits, debt, family, housing and immigration are made harder by cuts to the civil justice system.

Drawing on 150 interviews conducted with those denied justice, as well as up-to-date academic research, sector reports and news stories, they demonstrate how failure to access justice often represents a catastrophic step in the life of that person and their family. Readable yet robust, this powerful account humanises the hostile political debates that surround legal aid issues and reveals what access to justice really means in Austerity Britain.

The Future of Social Democracy

Essays to Mark the 40th Anniversary of the Limehouse Declaration

Edited by Colin McDougall, Social Democratic group, Liberal Democrats, George Kendall, Social Democratic group, Liberal Democrats and Wendy Chamberlain, MP for North East Fife

“This book addresses vital questions which go to the heart of how we build a fairer, greener and more caring society.”

SIR ED DAVEY MP, LEADER OF THE LIBERAL DEMOCRATS

2021 marks the 40th anniversary of the launch of the Social Democratic Party in the UK, later the Liberal Democrats, known as the Limehouse Declaration. To mark this important milestone, this book brings together prominent politicians from across the spectrum of social democracy to reflect on its history and the challenges it faces in the coming decades.

With an introduction by Sir Vince Cable describing the current state of social democracy across the world, leading figures including Sarah Olney, Roger Liddle and Chris Huhne explore a wide range of contentious policy areas such as the economy, housing and globalisation. Together, they set out a vision for the country and for the Liberal Democrats that has social justice at its core.

The Impact of COVID-19 on Devolution

Re-centralising the British State Beyond Brexit?

Janice Morphet, University College London

COVID COLLECTION

"This timely and original book captures the COVID-19 zeitgeist and Brexit debates and in doing so, tells us something about the governance of modern Britain at a time of change and crisis."

CHARLOTTE BURNS, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

"An up-to-date account of how the response to the crisis is playing out and what this tells us about the changing the nature of the UK state in a post-EU context."

TONY HERON, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

The COVID-19 pandemic is the first time that many of the UK population, including its national politicians, have become aware of the practical dimensions of devolution to its four nations through the delivery of support to those affected by the virus.

Part of the COVID Collection, this topical book explores how the public perception of the decentralized governments has changed during the pandemic and uses case studies to discuss the actions taken by central government to undermine the devolution settlement. Assessing the role of local government in supporting communities despite cuts from central government, it makes a vital contribution to the debate on the future options for the UK within the context of Brexit and what follows.

The Unequal Pandemic

COVID-19 and Health Inequalities

Clare Bamba, Newcastle University, Julia Lynch, University of Pennsylvania and Katherine E. Smith, University of Strathclyde

"An important compendium of patterns of inequalities from COVID itself, the lockdown and the economic impacts."

JAMES DUNN, MCMASTER UNIVERSITY

It has been claimed that we are 'all in it together' and that the COVID-19 virus 'does not discriminate'. This accessible, yet authoritative book dispels this myth of COVID-19 as an 'equal opportunity' disease, by showing how the pandemic is a syndemic of disease and inequality.

Drawing on international data and accounts, it argues that the pandemic is unequal in three ways: it has killed unequally, been experienced unequally and will impoverish unequally. These inequalities are a political choice: with governments effectively choosing who lives and who dies, we need to learn from COVID-19 quickly to prevent growing inequality and to reduce health inequalities in the future. COVID-19 is an unequal pandemic.

Policing the Pandemic

How Public Health Becomes Public Order

Lambros Fatsis, University of Brighton and Melayna Lamb, independent writer and academic

COVID COLLECTION

"Makes a compelling case for a critical assessment of what the COVID-19 pandemic can tell us about policing, health and governance all of the time. Lively, topical and precisely what we need."

PETER SQUIRES, UNIVERSITY OF BRIGHTON

The COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted the inadequacies of the state's response to public health and public order issues through deeply flawed legislation. Written in the context of the #BlackLivesMatter protests, this book explores why law enforcement responses to a public health emergency are prioritised over welfare provision and what this tells us about the state's criminal justice institutions.

Informing scholarly, civic and activist thinking on the political nature of policing, it reveals how increasing police powers disproportionately affects black people and suggests alternative ways of designing public safety beyond a law enforcement context.

After Brexit and Other Essays

Andrew Gamble, University of Sheffield

This volume brings together some of Andrew Gamble's most important and influential writings on British politics and political economy from the last 40 years. They reflect on many of the issues that animate British politics, from the relative decline of the economy and the reshaping of the welfare state to the transformation of the Conservative and Labour parties and the changing constitutional order with the devolution of power to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Taken together, the essays in this volume are testament to the acuity of one of Britain's foremost political thinkers and provide rich insight into debates and ideas that continue to influence British politics and Britain's place in the world.

The Western Ideology and Other Essays

Andrew Gamble, University of Sheffield

This seminal essay is published, for the first time, alongside a collection of Andrew Gamble's writings on political ideas and ideologies, chosen to illustrate his thoughts on intellectual history and the history of ideas. Themes include the character of economic liberalism and neoliberalism, especially as expressed in the work of Friedrich Hayek, as well as critiques from both social democratic and conservative perspectives and from critics as varied as Karl Marx, Michael Oakeshott and Bob Dylan.

The collection includes a new autobiographical introduction, notes on the essays and an epilogue putting the essays into the context of today's society. Andrew Gamble provides a unique exploration of the debates and the ideas that have shaped our politics and Western ideology.

Grand Strategy in 10 Words

A Guide to Great Power Politics in the 21st Century

Sven Biscop, Royal Institute for International Relations in Brussels and Ghent University

"A leading European expert giving wise counsel to strategy makers on both sides of the Atlantic, for a community of values that has choppy waters behind it, likely to face further rough seas ahead. Strongly recommended empirically derived navigation aids for practitioners!"

BEATRICE HEUSER, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

"An excellent and readable book. His analysis is clear and his suggestions for the future pertinent. He provides a comprehensive framework for understanding strategies in general, let alone the Grand Strategies of major powers."

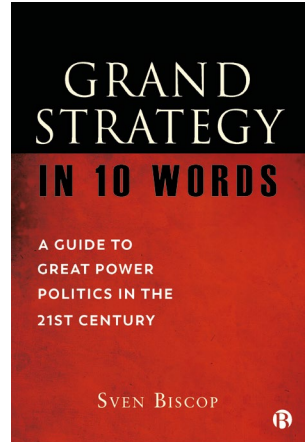

GENERAL SIR RUPERT SMITH KCB DSO OBE QGM

"A timely work accessible to practitioners, illuminating to scholars, and instructive to students...elegantly combines theory, history and current-policy analysis to provide a guide to how to mobilize the concept to understand and navigate an increasingly multi-polar world."

BARRY R. POSEN, MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

In a world that has returned to great power rivalry, understanding the grand strategy of these powers is crucial. This book introduces ten key terms for analysing grand strategy and shows how the world's great powers – the United States, China, Russia and the European Union (EU) – shape their strategic decisions today.

Outlining the steps needed for a less confrontational grand strategy and a more peaceful and stable world order, this lively and accessible introduction shows how the choices made in each of these ten areas will determine the course of world politics in the first half of the 21st century.

Vicarious Warfare

American Strategy and the Illusion of War on the Cheap

Thomas Waldman, Macquarie University, Sydney

"Waldman is an astute and knowledgeable guide to the emerging landscape of vicarious warfare. This superb book convincingly demonstrates how arms-length interventions are rooted in historical evolution of the American military tradition. It is essential reading for those who want to understand the implications of the rise of war-at-a-distance."

ANDREW MUMFORD, PROFESSOR OF WAR STUDIES, UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

"For anyone concerned with the human cost of war (as we all should be), Waldman offers a key to unlocking the 'alchemy' of America's fighting strategy. This richly researched and thoughtful book finally gives us words to describe the troubling path we're on. Vicarious war indeed."

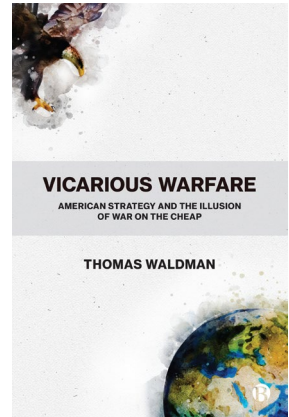

SARAH HOLEWINSKI, WASHINGTON DIRECTOR, HUMAN RIGHTS WATCH

"This trenchant and original analysis shows the advantages, but also the huge potential moral and long-term political cost, of high-tech military engagements with maximum detachment. A very important study rethinking war."

BEATRICE HEUSER, PROFESSOR OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

Over recent years, America has been moving towards a vicarious form of warfare, where key tasks are delegated to proxies, the military's exposure to danger is limited, and special forces and covert instruments are on the increase. Important strategic decisions are taken with minimal scrutiny or public engagement.

This compelling account charts the historical emergence of this distinctive tradition of war and explains the factors driving its contemporary prominence. It contrasts its tactical advantages with its hidden costs and potential to cause significant strategic harm.

US Foreign Policy

Domestic Roots and International Impact

Richard Johnson, Queen Mary University of London

"This book features an excellent blend of historical examples and anecdotes alongside an introduction to key features of US foreign policymaking."

RUBRICK BIEGON, UNIVERSITY OF KENT

Paying close attention to its domestic roots, this textbook provides a valuable introduction to the construction and application of US foreign policy in the modern era.

Accessibly written and including helpful illustrative material, a glossary and guide to further reading, the book is organised around four broad themes:

- the ideologies of US foreign policy;
- the institutions of US foreign policy making;
- the actors who influence and shape the content of US foreign policy;
- the policy goals and ideas which motivate US foreign policy.

Environmental Anarchy?

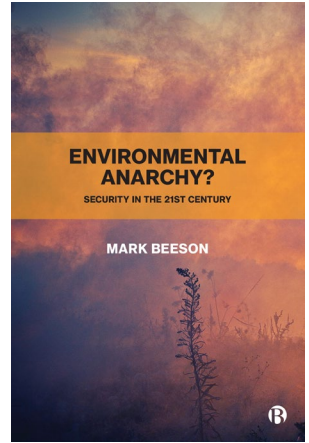

Security in the 21st Century

Mark Beeson, University of Western Australia

At a time when environmental crises and global pandemics pose interconnected existential threats to the very continuation of life, we urgently need to rethink our security priorities.

This book explains why insecurity has become such a ubiquitous feature of life in the 21st century and why policy makers, strategic analysts and many scholars are failing to recognise or address its underlying causes.

Beeson, a leading expert in international relations, analyses the forces creating the epidemic of insecurity that is currently sweeping the world and argues that power politics and militarism are not going to help us cure it.

China Risen?

Studying Chinese Global Power

Shaun Breslin, University of Warwick

"A nuanced and impressive analysis."

ROSEMARY FOOT, UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD

This major new study examines the nature of Chinese power and its impact on the international order.

Drawing on an extensive range of Chinese-language debates and discussions, the book explains the roles of different actors and interests in Chinese international interactions.

Providing an important challenge to scholars and policy makers who seek to engage with China, the book demonstrates just how far starting assumptions can influence the questions asked, evidence sought and conclusions reached.

Authoritarian Contagion

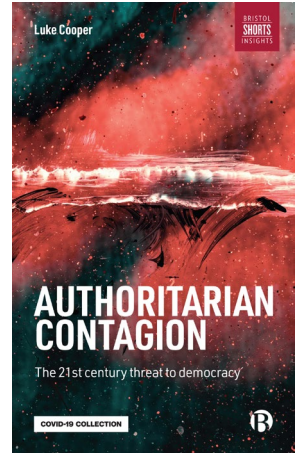

The Global Threat to Democracy

Luke Cooper, London School of Economics

The 21st century has not seen the triumph of democracy that some predicted, but instead, in many cases, a turn towards authoritarian forms of government as an imagined solution to the many crises facing humanity.

This innovative and important book draws on examples from around the world to examine the spread of draconian and nationalistic forms of government: a lurch towards ‘authoritarian protectionism’ which observes a simple maxim, that ‘the world may end for others, but not for us’. While there is hope that the COVID-19 crisis could lead to a reinvigoration of democracy and a new economic agenda, there is also the risk of a further slide towards authoritarian rule and an urgent need for democratic renewal and change to combat this.

The novel conceptualization offered in this book will give readers a new and deeper insight into the changing nature of the authoritarian threat to democracy – and how it might be overcome.

Democratic Decay and Authoritarian Resurgence

Natasha Lindstaedt, University of Essex

"An essential read for all students of politics interested in the future of democracy."

ANJA NEUNDORF, UNIVERSITY OF GLASGOW

"Offers a comprehensive and highly readable account of the ways in which corruption, restrictions on accountability and normative shifts have driven recent authoritarian backsliding across the globe."

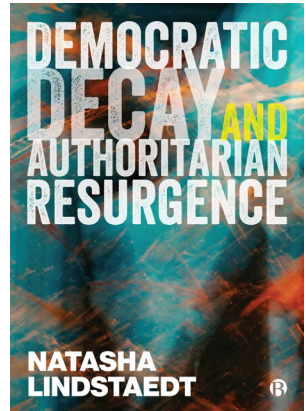

SARAH BIRCH, KING'S COLLEGE LONDON

Why do democracies fall apart, and what can be done about it?

This book introduces students to the concept and causes of democratic decay in the modern world. Illustrating the integral link between public commitment to democratic norms and the maintenance of healthy democracies, it examines the key factors in decaying democracies, including:

- economic inequality;
- corruption;
- populist and authoritarian discourse;
- declining belief in political institutions and processes.

Drawing on real-world developments, and including international case studies, the book outlines the extent to which there is a 'democratic recession' in contemporary politics and shows how transnational networks and technology are impacting this.

Workaway

The Human Costs of Europe's Common Labour Market

Jonathon W. Moses, Norwegian University of Science and Technology (NTNU)

The drive to create a common market in Europe has proceeded without much thought given to the particular needs of workers. This book examines the process of market integration in Europe to show how it has undermined the power and influence of European workers, and results in a market that generates significant human costs.

Starting from the position of labour, this book offers an alternative approach to labour market integration in Europe which tries to balance the needs of justice and efficiency, to the benefit of workers.

The Ironic State

British Comedy and the Everyday Politics of Globalization

James Brassett, University of Warwick

"In this entertaining and incisive analysis, James Brassett historically traces British comedy through a broader global context. His creative counsel for a productive image of comedic resistance is one that has never been more urgent, or welcome, than today."

BRENT STEELE, UNIVERSITY OF UTAH

"A fascinating perspective on how British comedy is integrated into our lived experience of globalised culture, its historical sweep is brought bang up to date with 'citizen satire' in meme culture and global platforms for our star comedians. A timely and thoughtful study on the politics of comedy."

JANE ARTHURS, CO-AUTHOR OF RUSSELL BRAND: COMEDY, CELEBRITY, POLITICS

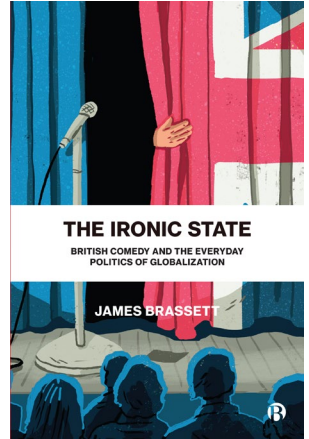

"Brassett's meditations on British humour are incisive, provocative and often hilarious. Together they elegantly reveal comedy as a prism through which we critically reflect on our role in the world."

CHRIS ROSSDALE, UNIVERSITY OF BRISTOL

"Very impressive theoretical and empirical contribution, easy to read, funny and interesting."

ALEX SUTTON, OXFORD BROOKES UNIVERSITY

What can comedy tell us about the politics of a nation? This book demonstrates how British comedy can provide intimate and vital understandings of the everyday politics of globalization in Britain. Touching on issues such as empire, the class system and capitalism, the author reveals how comedy offers valuable insights on how global market life is experienced, mediated, contested and accommodated.

Globalizing Regionalism and International Relations

Edited by Beatrix Futák-Campbell, Leiden University

Building on the recent global turn in the field of International Relations, this book provides an innovative interrogation of regionalism.

The book applies a global framework in order to move beyond the traditional conception of regionalism, which views regions as competing blocs dominated by great powers. Instead, it shows that regions are a dynamic configuration of social and political identities in which a variety of actors interact and partake in regional cooperation.

India's First Diplomat

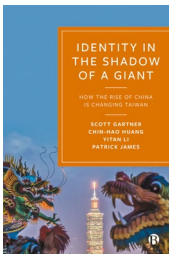

V.S. Srinivasa Sastri and the Making of Liberal Internationalism

Vineet Thakur, Leiden University

Though now largely a forgotten figure, V. S. Srinivasa Sastri was a celebrated Indian politician and diplomat in the early 20th century.

This book rehabilitates Sastri and offers a diplomatic biography of his years as India's roving ambassador in the 1920s. It examines his involvement in key conferences and agreements, as well as his achievements in advocating for racial equality and securing the rights of Indians both at home and abroad.

Identity in the Shadow of a Giant

How the Rise of China is Changing Taiwan

Scott Sigmund Gartner, Pennsylvania State University, Chin-Hao Huang, Yal-NUS College, Yitan Li, Seattle University and Patrick James, University of Southern California

Co-authored by four International Relations scholars, this book investigates the implications of the global ascent of China on cross-Strait relations and the identity of Taiwan as a democratic state.

Their assessment offers valuable insights into which policies have the best chance of resulting in peaceful relations and prosperity across the Taiwan Strait and builds to a new theory of identity at elite and mass levels.

How to Achieve Defence Cooperation in Europe?

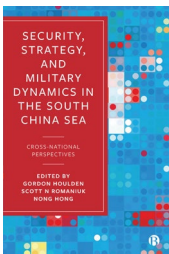

The Subregional Approach

Bence Nemeth, King's College London

This timely analysis of security in Europe identifies the factors that enable and hinder the creation of networks of defence cooperation across the continent.

Drawing on three central cases of defence cooperation and a range of other examples, the book develops an account of the structural and situational factors that influence cooperation and provides an instructive response to contentious questions about defence matters in Europe.

Varieties of Austerity

Heather Whiteside, University of Waterloo,
Stephen McBride, McMaster University and
Bryan Evans, Ryerson University

Austerity is not always one-size-fits-all; it can be a flexible, class-based strategy taking several different forms.

This important book identifies continuity and variety in crisis-driven austerity restructuring across Canada, Denmark, Ireland and Spain. It uncovers how austerity can be categorized into different dynamic types, and exposes the economic, social and political implications of the varieties of austerity.

Between Realism and Revolt

Governing Cities in the Crisis of Neoliberal Globalism

Jonathan S. Davies, De Montfort University

"Indispensable for urban scholars and practitioners alike!"

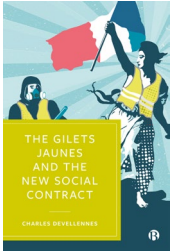

MARGIT MAYER, CENTRE FOR METROPOLITAN STUDIES

In this book, a leading governance theorist develops a comparative analysis of austerity governance and resistance in eight cities and establishes a conjunctural perspective on the rolling crises of neoliberal globalism.

Employing Gramscian regime analysis, Davies explores how urban governance shapes variations in austere neoliberalism, tackling themes including collaboration, dominance, resistance and counter-hegemony.

The Gilets Jaunes and the New Social Contract

Charles Develennes, University of Kent

"Illuminates both our modern condition and the theoretical tradition that has shaped our time."

JAMES MARTEL, SAN FRANCISCO STATE UNIVERSITY

Providing a lively account of the gilets jaunes, the yellow vest movement in France, Develennes assesses what lessons can be drawn from their activities and the impact for the contemporary relationship between state and citizen.

He proposes a new relationship between the state and the individual, and establishes the necessity of rethinking the modern democratic nature of our representative polities.

Chinese Men's Practices of Intimacy, Embodiment and Kinship

Crafting Elastic Masculinity

Siyang Cao, East China Normal University

"Sheds new light on masculinity with nuanced and richly textured stories of Chinese men whose diverse and complex experiences and identities often challenge popular stereotypes."

VANESSA L. FONG, AMHERST COLLEGE

This book explores Chinese young men's views of manhood and develops a new concept of 'elastic masculinity'. Drawing on empirical research, the author showcases how Chinese masculinities reflect the resilience of Confucian notions as well as transnational ideas of modern manhood.

This is an invaluable resource for understanding the profound social changes which have transformed gendered arrangements in urban China, while bringing the discussion into dialogue with 'Western' discourse on masculinity.

Sex/Gender and Self-Determination

Policy Developments in Law, Health and Pedagogical Contexts

Zowie Davy, De Montfort University

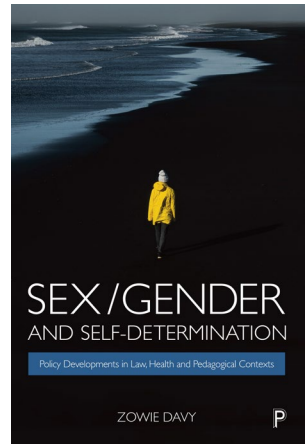

"Casts new light on the contemporary landscapes of trans people's health care and the experiences of gender diverse children in school."

SALLY HINES, UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

At a time when gender diversity is gaining increasing public attention, this book presents a poignant account of the current policy approaches to self-determining sex and gender in the UK and beyond.

Davy shows how legal, medical and pedagogical policy developments are interconnected, while unique interviews with parents of sex/gender expansive children reveal how policy affects and is affected by experiences and advocacy.

Written by an internationally renowned scholar, this book sparks new debate on the challenges and opportunities surrounding sex/gender self-determination.

Data Lives

How Data Are Made and Shape Our World

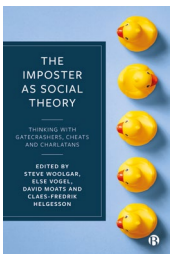

Rob Kitchin, Maynooth University

"A powerful and important account of the role data plays in shaping everyday life from a world-leading researcher with decades of experience in the field."

JAMES ASH, NEWCASTLE UNIVERSITY

Rob Kitchin explores the intricacies of data creation and charts how data-driven technologies have become essential to how society, government and the economy work. Creatively blending scholarly analysis, biography and fiction, he demonstrates how data are shaped by social and political forces, and the extent to which they influence our daily lives. He reveals our data world to be one of potential danger, but also of hope.

The Imposter As Social Theory

Thinking with Gatecrashers, Cheats and Charlatans

Edited by Steve Woolgar, Else Vogel and David Moats, Linköping University and Claes-Fredrik Helgesson, Uppsala University

"This book is for anybody bored to tears with the present, repetitive and dull, mainstream social theory."

BARBARA CZARNIAWSKA, UNIVERSITY OF GOTHENBURG

The figure of the imposter can stir complicated emotions, from intrigue to suspicion and fear. But what insights can these troublesome figures provide into the social relations and cultural forms from which they emerge? Edited by expert scholars, this volume explores the question through a diverse range of empirical cases, including click farms, bikers, business leaders and fraudulent scientists.

Social Media and the Automatic Production of Memory

Classification, Ranking and the Sorting of the Past

Ben Jacobsen and David Beer, University of York

Social media platforms hold vast amounts of data about our lives. Content from the past is increasingly being presented in the form of ‘memories’.

Critically exploring this new form of memory making, Jacobsen and Beer ask how social media are beginning to change the way we remember, and they consider important implications for the role of content in the algorithmically defined spaces of our lives.

BRISTOL SHORTS RESEARCH

The Political Economy of Digital Monopolies

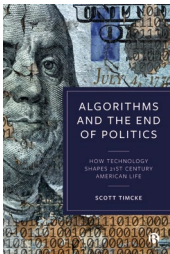

Contradictions and Alternatives to Data Commodification

Paško Bilic, Institute for Development and International Relations, Toni Prug, independent researcher and Mislav Žitko, University of Zagreb

As outrage over the socially damaging practices of digital companies intensifies, this book asks what it actually means to hold ‘monopoly’ in the tech world and how it affects the way companies operate.

Combining new and traditional Marxian perspectives, the authors provide an in-depth analysis of how the major tech giants are produced, financialised and regulated.

Algorithms and the End of Politics

How Technology Shapes 21st Century American Life

Scott Timcke, University of the West Indies at St Augustine

“In this provocative and illuminating book, Timcke shows how digital technologies impose capitalism upon every facet of our lives and undermine democracy.”

VICTOR PICKARD, UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

This timely study considers the growing impacts of digital technologies on populism in the US and beyond. Analysing the rise of digital devices, social networks and the technology giants behind them, the author provides new perspectives from digital and economic sociology to demonstrate the power of algorithms on political legitimacy and everyday life.

Organizations and Activism series

Series Editors: Daniel King, Nottingham Trent University and Martin Parker, University of Bristol

From co-operatives to corporations, Occupy to Facebook, organizations shape our lives. They engage in politics as well as shaping the possible futures of policy making and social change. This groundbreaking new series offers critical examinations of organizations as sites of, or targets for, activism. The first two books in the series are now available with more to come. Click here for more information.

Guerrilla Democracy

Mobile Power and Revolution in the 21st Century

Peter Bloom, University of Essex and Owain Smolović Jones and Jamie Woodcock, The Open University

This book offers an in-depth analysis of platform-based radical movements from the online coalitions of voters and activists to the Deliveroo and Uber strikes.

Combining cutting-edge theory with empirical research, the authors show how digital communication technologies revolutionise political and economic organising. The result is an invaluable contribution to the emerging literature on the relation of technology and society.

Beyond the Wage

Ordinary Work in Diverse Economies

Edited by William Monteith and Philippa Williams, Queen Mary University of London and Dora-Olivia Vicol, Work Rights Centre

This collection revitalises debates on the future of work by challenging the idea of wage employment as the global norm.

Taking theoretical inspiration from the Global South, the authors compare lived experiences of 'ordinary work' across taken-for-granted conceptual and geographical boundaries. In so doing, they open up new possibilities for how work, identity and security might be woven together differently.

Emotion and Proactivity at Work

Prospects and Dialogues

Edited by Kelly Z. Peng, Hong Kong Shue Yan University and Chia-Huei Wu, University of Leeds

EPDF and EPUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC licence.

To date, employee proactivity research has mainly focused on cognitive-motivational processes that shape individuals' behaviours at work. But emotions can also 'energize' employees' proactivity, especially in interdependent and uncertain work environments.

In this pioneering work, expert scholars offer new thinking on the process by examining how emotion can drive employees' proactivity in the workplace and how, in turn, that proactivity can shape one's emotional experiences.

Transnational Migration and the New Subjects of Work

Transmigrants, Hybrids and Cosmopolitans

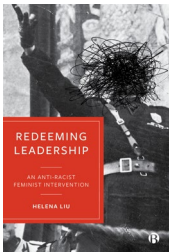

Banu Özkazaç-Pan, University of Massachusetts and Brown University

"Provides a valuable way in which organization studies can engage with transnational migration studies."
RAZA MIR, WILLIAM PATERSON UNIVERSITY

In an increasingly globalized world, mobility is a new defining feature of our lives, livelihoods and work experiences. Now available in paperback, this book presents a much-needed new concept for understanding people, work and organizations. The first to use transnational migration studies as a new theoretical framework in management and organization studies, it also considers growing inequality associated with work in changing societies.

Participatory Ideology

From Exclusion to Involvement

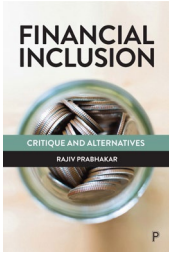

Peter Beresford, University of Essex and Shaping Our Lives

This book examines for the first time the exclusionary nature of prevailing political ideologies. Bringing together theory, practice and the relationship between participation, political ideology and social welfare, it offers a detailed critique of how the crucial move to more participatory approaches may be achieved.

It is concerned with valuing people's knowledge and experience in relation to ideology, exploring its conventional social construction including counter ideology and the ideological underpinnings and relations of participation. It also offers a practical guide for change.

Creative Research Methods in Education

Principles and Practices

Helen Kara, We Research It Ltd, Narelle Lemon, Swinburne University of Technology, Dawn Mannay, Cardiff University and Megan McPherson, The University of Melbourne

“An important source of inspiration and guidance for early career researchers and students.”

HELEN LOMAX, UNIVERSITY OF HUDDERSFIELD

“An invaluable, highly accessible and comprehensive compendium of state-of-the-art creative methods that opens manifold new opportunities.”

CONSTANTINO DUMANGANE JR, UNIVERSITY OF YORK

Co-authored by an international team of experts across disciplines, this important book is one of the first to demonstrate the enormous benefit creative methods offer for education research.

You do not have to be an artist to be creative, and the book encourages students, researchers and practitioners to discover and consider new ways to explore the field of education.

It illustrates how using creative methods, such as poetic inquiry, comics, theatre and animation, can support learning and illuminate participation and engagement. Bridging academia and practice, the book offers:

- practical advice and tips on how to use creative methods in education research;
- numerous case studies from around the world providing real-life examples of creative research methods in education practice;
- reflective discussion questions to support learning.

Creating Participatory Research

Principles, Practice and Reality

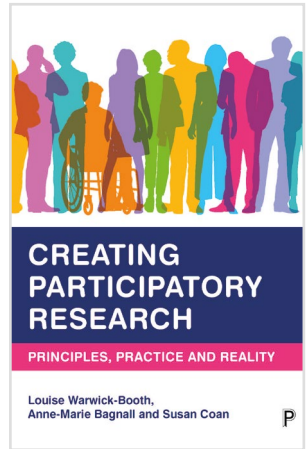

Louise Warwick-Booth, Anne-Marie Bagnall and Susan Coan,
Leeds Beckett University

What is participatory research, and how can participatory methods be implemented in practice?

This valuable textbook provides an accessible, practical how-to guide for using participatory methods in research. Drawing on their variety of experience in the field, the authors:

- outline the principles of participatory research;
- explore the practice of utilising participatory methods;
- lay out the realities of using such approaches within a range of settings.

Providing practical advice, real-world examples, and packed with reflective questions, top tips and suggested further reading, this book will be an essential resource for students and researchers alike.

Doing Accessible Social Research

A Practical Guide

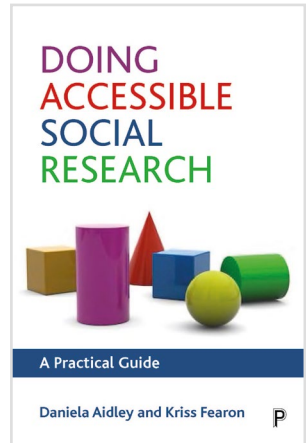

Daniela Aidley, Leicester University and Kriss Fearon, De Montfort University

Nearly 20 percent of the population have a disability. Despite this, mainstream research often does not address the methodological and practical issues that act as barriers to disabled people's participation in social research.

Requiring no prior knowledge about accessible research methods, this book:

- explains how removing barriers to participation improves the quality of your research;
- covers the research process from design, to collecting data, to dissemination and publication;
- includes useful examples and vignettes to illustrate how issues play out in practice.

This book will be invaluable to researchers from a variety of backgrounds looking to increase participation in their research, whether postgraduate students, experienced academic researchers, or practitioners and professionals.

Researching in the Age of COVID-19 series

As the COVID-19 pandemic hit researchers' plans, discussion swiftly turned to adapting research methods for a locked-down world. Bringing together a diverse range of contributors, this series of three Rapid Response titles help academic, applied and practitioner-researchers worldwide adapt to the new challenges COVID-19 brings.

Volume I: Response and Reassessment

Edited by Helen Kara, We Research It Ltd and Su-Ming Khoo, National University of Ireland Galway

Focusing on response and reassessment, this book has three parts: the first looks at the turn to digital methods; the second reviews methods in hand; and the final part reassesses different needs and capabilities.

COVID-19 and Coproduction in Health and Social Care

Groups most severely affected by COVID-19 have tended to be those marginalised before the pandemic and are now largely being ignored in developing responses to it. These companion volumes explore the practical, political and academic benefits of putting coproduction and participatory approaches at the heart of our response to the pandemic.

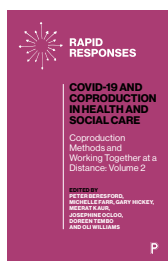

Volume 1: The Challenges and Necessity of Coproduced Knowledge

Edited by Peter Beresford, University of Essex, Michelle Farr, University of Bristol, Gary Hickey, University of Brighton, Meerat Kaur, National Institute for Health Research, Josephine Ocloo, King's College London, Doreen Tembo, University of Southampton and Oli Williams, King's College London

Giving voice to marginalised communities, this volume examines how the limits of existing structures severely undermined the potential of coproduction generally, while also highlighting cases in which it has been successful.

Ageing and the Crisis in Health and Social Care

Global and National Perspectives

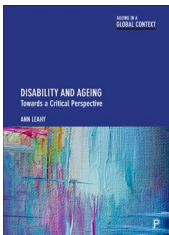

Bethany Simmonds, University of Portsmouth

In the context of ageing populations, this timely study explores current and future health and social care for older people.

With examples from Germany, Sweden and the UK, it reviews provision in the context of structural trends including neoliberalisation and marketisation and presents new solutions to pressing challenges in complex care pathways.

Sex and Intimacy in Later Life series

Series Editors: Paul Simpson, independent academic, Paul Reynolds, International Network for Sexual Ethics and Politics and The Open University and Trish Hafford-Letchfield, University of Strathclyde

Despite evidence of an increase in sexual engagement among older people, little academic attention has been paid to this subject. In this new international series, scholars from a range of disciplines address the experiential, empirical and theoretical landscapes of sex and ageing. There are currently two books in the series with more forthcoming. Click here for more information.

Sex and Diversity in Later Life

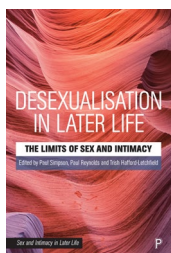

Critical Perspectives

Edited by Trish Hafford-Letchfield, Paul Simpson, and Paul Reynolds

Addressing diversity in sexual and intimate experience later in life (50+), this edited collection explores how being older intersects with differences of ethnicity, gender, sexuality and class. This original contribution extends knowledge concerning intimacies, practices and pleasures for those thought to represent normative, non-normative and 'new normative' sexual identification and expression.

Desexualisation in Later Life

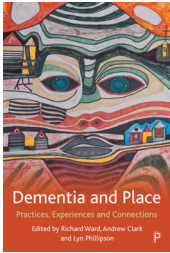

The Limits of Sex and Intimacy

Edited by Paul Simpson, Paul Reynolds, and Trish Hafford-Letchfield

Ageing is continually represented as a process of desexualisation. Challenging this assumption, this interdisciplinary volume explores the impact of desexualisation in various contexts and across different identities, orientations, relationships and practices. It distinguishes the real challenges faced by older people from the prejudices imposed on them.

Growing Up and Getting By

International Perspectives on Childhood and Youth in Hard Times

Edited by John Horton, University of Northampton., Helena Pimlott-Wilson, Loughborough University and Sarah Marie Hall, University of Manchester

This book explores how children, young people and families cope with socioeconomic poverty and precarity in diverse international contexts.

Bringing together new, multi-disciplinary research, this book explores how children and young people across Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas experience and cope with situations of poverty and precarity.

It looks at neoliberalism, austerity and global economic crisis, and the different ways that children, young people and families 'get by' under these challenging circumstances, showing how they care for one another and envisage more hopeful socio-political futures.

In 1990, shocking television footage was released that showed the inhumane conditions of the so-called 'Romanian orphans' living in horrific conditions in state care. This book sheds light on the lived experiences of these children, including those who stayed in these institutions throughout their childhood as well as those who were adopted, in Romania and internationally.

It reports on their experiences in the 1990s and early 2000s in children's homes, foster care, domestic adoption as well as adoption in the USA, Italy, England and Ireland. Importantly, this book challenges stereotypes about adoption and children in care and provides new evidence for what is important for children in care today.

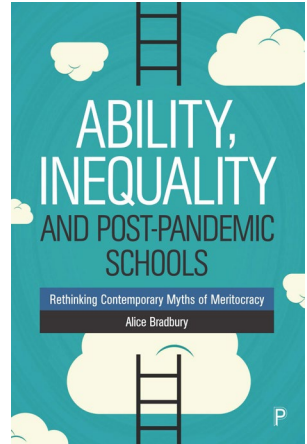

Ability, Inequality and Post-Pandemic Schools

Rethinking Contemporary Myths of Meritocracy

Alice Bradbury, University College London, Institute of Education

The COVID-19 pandemic closed schools, but this hiatus provided an opportunity to rethink the fundamental principles of our education system. In this thought-provoking book, Alice Bradbury discusses how before the pandemic the education system assumed ability to be measurable and innate, and how this meritocracy myth reinforced educational inequalities – a central issue during the crisis.

Drawing on a project on ability-grouping practices, Bradbury analyses how the recent educational developments of datafication and neuroscience have revised these ideas about how we classify and label children, and how we can rethink the idea of innate intelligence as we rebuild a post-pandemic schooling system.

Lived Experiences of Ableism in Academia

Strategies for Inclusion in Higher Education

Edited by Nicole Brown, University College London, Institute of Education

Deeply embedded in personal experience, this perceptive collection explores ableism in academia. Through the theoretical lenses of autobiography, autoethnography, embodiment, body work and emotional labour, contributors present insightful and rigorous explorations of being ‘othered’ in academia.

This book provides practical examples to develop inclusive universities and a less ableist environment.

Great Mistakes in Education Policy

And How to Avoid Them in the Future

Ruth Lupton, The University of Manchester and Debra Hayes, The University of Sydney

“This well-written book fills a gap in the current thinking on educational disadvantage, an interesting and very topical read.”

ANTONY HUGHES, HARMONY TRUST

Situating the cases of England and Australia within broader global policy trends, this book analyses what has gone wrong with education policy in recent decades. Drawing on research evidence, the authors issue a fundamental challenge to current policy orthodoxies and identify policy alternatives to make education both better and fairer.

Resisting Neoliberalism in Education

Local, National and Transnational Perspectives

Edited by Lyn Tett, University of Huddersfield and University of Edinburgh and Mary Hamilton, Lancaster University

"I recommend this book not only for the ideas it discusses, but also for the practices of resistance the authors detail in depth."

LEONA M. ENGLISH, ST. FRANCIS XAVIER UNIVERSITY

Neoliberalism is having a detrimental impact on social and ethical goals in the field of education.

Drawing on international contexts across different educational settings, this book shows how neoliberalism in education can be challenged and changed at the local, national and transnational levels in order to foster a more democratic culture.

Law Through the Life Course

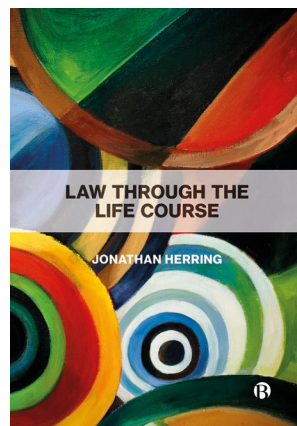

Jonathan Herring, University of Oxford

"A rich, critical and interdisciplinary exploration of the various legal frameworks which shape, reflect and affect different stages of the life course"

BEVERLEY CLOUGH, UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Court decisions are typically seen as one-off interventions relating to an incident in a person's life, but a legal decision can impact on the person as they were and who they will become. This book is the first to explore the interactions of the law with the life course in order to understand the complex life journey as a whole.

Jonathan Herring reveals how the law privileges 'middle age' to the detriment of the whole life story and explains why an understanding of the life course is important for lawyers. Relevant to those working in family law, elder law, medical law and ethics, jurisprudence, gender and the law, the book will promote new thinking by exploring the engagement of the law with the life course of the self.

Reforming the UK's Citizenship Test

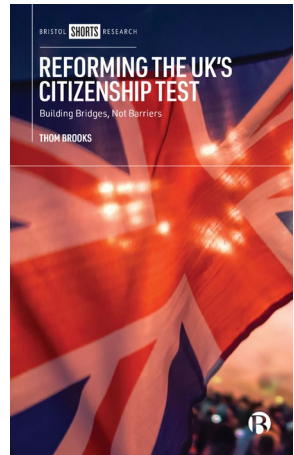

Building Bridges, Not Barriers

Thom Brooks, Durham University

How many questions could you answer in a pub quiz about British values?

Designed to ensure new migrants have accepted British values and integrated, the UK's citizenship test is often portrayed as a bad pub quiz with answers few citizens know. With the launch of a new post-Brexit immigration system, this is a critical time to change the test.

Thom Brooks draws on first-hand experience of taking the test, and interviews with key figures including past Home Secretaries, to expose the test as ineffective and a barrier to citizenship. This accessible guide offers recommendations for transforming the citizenship test into a 'bridge to citizenship' which fosters greater inclusion and integration.

Philosophy Behind Bars

Growth and Development in Prison

Kirstine Szifris, Manchester Metropolitan University

Male prisons can be dangerous places. With a climate of distrust underpinned by a divided atmosphere, ensuring survival is imperative for both physical and psychological wellbeing. This groundbreaking study wanted to find out whether, given the choice, prisoners can be given the space to reflect and grow, rather than to simply survive. By engaging prisoners in philosophy education, Szifris found it enabled them to think about some of the 'big' questions in life and, as a result, to see themselves and others differently.

Using the prisoners' voices, Szifris shows the importance of this type of education for growth and development. She demonstrates how the philosophical dialogue led to a form of community which provided a space for self-reflection, pro-social interaction and communal exploration of ideas, and which could have long-term positive consequences.

Why Travel?

Understanding our Need to Move and How it Shapes our Lives

Edited by Matthew Niblett, Independent Transport Commission and Kris Beuret, Social Research Associates (SRA)

Why travel? What motivations underpin the journeys we make? And how can we make decisions that improve our travel experiences? Arguing that the desire to move is a purpose in itself, this book brings together leading experts to provide insights from multiple viewpoints across the sciences, arts and humanities. Together, they examine key travel motivations, including the importance of travel for human wellbeing, and how these can be reconciled with challenges such as reducing our carbon footprint, adapting new mobility technologies, and improving the quality of our journeys.

The book shows how our travel choices are shaped by a wide range of social, physical, psychological and cultural factors, which have profound implications for the design of future transport policies. Offering thought-provoking and practical new perspectives, this fascinating book will be essential for all those who have ever wondered why we travel and how it relates to our fundamental needs.

Why Face-to-Face Still Matters

The Persistent Power of Cities in the Post-Pandemic Era

Jonathan Reades, King's College London and Martin Crookston, strategic planning consultant

"Highly readable and endlessly thought-provoking, this book helps us understand how towns and cities can continue to prosper in the wake of COVID-19 and galloping technological changes."

SHAUN SPIERS, GREEN ALLIANCE

"With rich interview material, this book offers a stimulating entrée into a necessary debate about identifying and sustaining economically crucial kinds of personal interaction – despite AI, COVID-19 and all!"

IAN GORDON, LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

"With superb timing, Reades and Crookston navigate a future for our cities by drawing on a rich understanding of their past. A luminous must-read for all concerned with the continuing vitality and potential of our cities."

JACKIE SADEK, UK REGENERATION

What makes a great city? Why do people and businesses still value urban life and buildings over a quiet life in the suburbs or countryside? Now might seem a difficult time to make the case for social contact in urban areas – so why is face-to-face contact still considered crucial to many 21st-century economies?

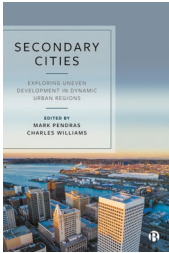

This accessible book explains cities' ongoing importance as places that thrive on face-to-face meetings, and on negotiating uncertainty and 'sealing the deal'. Using interviews with business leaders and staff it argues for the continuing value of the 'right' location despite the information revolution, the penetration of artificial intelligence (AI), and the COVID-19 pandemic. It also explores why digital systems have transformed businesses in cities and towns, but in fact have changed surprisingly little about the challenges of business life.

This timely book gives readers essential tools for thinking about the future of places ranging from market towns to great world cities.

Secondary Cities

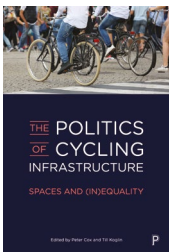

Exploring Uneven Development in Dynamic Urban Regions

Charles Williams and Mark Pendas,
University of Washington Tacoma

This is an exploration of cities and intra-regional relational dynamics often overlooked by urban scholars, and challenges common representations of urban development 'success' and 'failure'.

Gathering leading international scholars, it explores the regional second city concept in urban development theory and practice, and advances a research agenda that forefronts uneven urban development concerns. The book raises new questions about urban and regional development across the world, and provides innovative alternative relations and development strategies that reimagine the subordinate status of secondary cities.

The Politics of Cycling Infrastructure

Spaces and (In)Equality

Edited by Peter Cox, University of Chester and Till Koglin, Lund University

"Full of compelling insights from leading cycling researcher, this volume brings the politics of infrastructure to bear in vibrant case studies of why and how cities continue to marginalize cycling despite its many known benefits."

MIMI SHELLER, DREXEL UNIVERSITY

This book provides a critical examination of cycling structures alongside policies and practices used to promote cycling in Europe. It offers policy solutions for sustainable cities and shows the meaning of infrastructural provision to be variable according to larger political processes and contexts.

Sustainable Human Development Across the Life Course

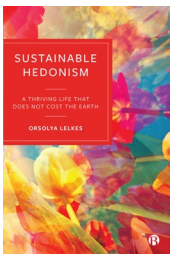

Evidence from Longitudinal Research

Edited by Prerna Banati, UNICEF's Office of Research, Innocenti

It is critical that the wellbeing of society is systematically tracked by indicators that not only give an accurate picture of human life today, but also provide a window into the future for all of us. This important book presents impactful findings from 12 international longitudinal studies that responded to the Agenda 2030 commitment to 'leave no-one behind'.

Exploring a wide range and complexity of global issues, it provides actionable strategies for policy makers and practitioners to strengthen the global Sustainable Development Goals framework and accelerate their implementation.

Sustainable Hedonism

A Thriving Life That Does Not Cost the Earth

Orsolya Lelkes, independent research consultant

How can we create a thriving life for us all that doesn't come at the price of an ecological destruction?

This book invites us to explore our collective and personal convictions about success and good life. It challenges the mainstream world view, rooted in economics, that equates happiness with pleasure and spurns greed, materialism, egoism and disconnection. Drawing on modern science and ancient Greek philosophy, the author details how we can cultivate our skills for enjoying life without harming ourselves or others, and can live an autonomous, creative and connected life.

COVID-19 in the Global South

Impacts and Responses

Edited by Pádraig Carmody, Trinity College Dublin, Gerard McCann, St Mary's University College, Clodagh Collieran and Ciara O'Halloran, Development Studies Association of Ireland

EPDF and EPUB available Open Access under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

Bringing together a range of experts across various sectors, this important volume explores some of the key issues that have arisen in the Global South with the COVID-19 pandemic.

Situating the worldwide health crisis within broader processes of globalisation, the book investigates implications for development and gender, as well as the effects on migration, climate change and economic inequality.

Contributors consider how widespread and long-lasting responses to the pandemic should be, while paying particular attention to the accentuated risks faced by vulnerable populations. Providing answers that will be essential to development practitioners and policy makers, the book offers vital insights into how the impact of COVID-19 can be mitigated in some of the most challenging socio-economic contexts worldwide.

The New Urban Ruins

Vacancy, Urban Politics, and International Experiments in the Post-Crisis City

Edited by Cian O'Callaghan, Trinity College Dublin and Cesare Di Felicianantonio, University of Leicester

"An insightful investigation of the political economic role that the urban vacancy phenomenon plays in the governance of cities, illustrated through a range of fascinating case studies across the world."

SONIA FREIRE-TRIGO, BARTLETT SCHOOL OF PLANNING, UNIVERSITY COLLEGE LONDON

This book considers contemporary urban challenges through the lens of urban vacancy. Centring urban vacancy as a core feature of urbanization, the contributors coalesce new empirical insights on the impacts of recent contestations over the reuse of vacant spaces in post-crisis cities across the globe.

Using international case studies from the Global North and Global South, the book sheds important new light on the complexity of forces and processes shaping urban vacancy and its reuse, exploring these areas as both lived spaces and sites of political antagonism. It explores what has and hasn't worked in repurposing vacant sites and provides sustainable blueprints for future development.

Urban Policy, Planning and the Built Environment series

Series Editors: Pierre Filion, University of Waterloo, Nicole Gurran, University of Sydney and Nick Gallent, UCL Bartlett School of Planning

This international series examines the interdisciplinary dimensions of urbanism and the built environment. It aims to provide critical analyses of the challenges confronting cities at the intersection between markets, public policy and the built environment, as well as the responses emerging from these challenges.

Rescaling Urban Governance

Planning, Localism and Institutional Change

John Sturzaker and Alexander Nurse,
University of Liverpool

"Sets out in clear terms how governments have sought to innovate and rescale governance, but have not necessarily resolved the issues that such changes were supposed to address."

GAVIN PARKER, UNIVERSITY OF READING

This authoritative book provides new research and thinking about cities, their governance and planning reform, examining global examples of cutting-edge policy experimentation and innovation designed to guarantee a sustainable future.

Hope Under Neoliberal Austerity

Responses from Civil Society and Civic Universities

Edited by Mel Steer, Simin Davoudi, Mark Shucksmith and Liz Todd, Newcastle University

Neoliberal-driven austerity is changing the role of the state, modes of public service provision and concepts of citizenship. How to thrive in today's society is a challenge for communities around the world at a time when government policies are increasingly promoting privatisation, deregulation and individualisation of responsibilities.

Drawing on innovative cases and strategic initiatives from North East England, this book explores multiple ways in which communities are responding to these challenging conditions and provides deeper insights into the efficacy of these approaches through key policy issues including access to food, education and health.

Urban Futures

Planning for City Foresight and City Visions

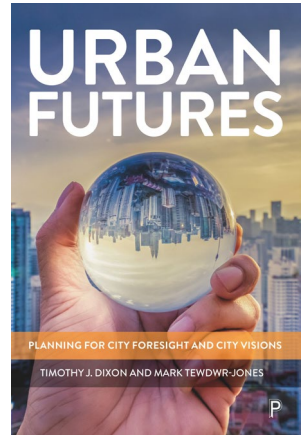

Timothy J. Dixon, University of Reading and Mark Tewdrw-Jones, Newcastle University

"This timely insightful book written by two leading city thinkers takes readers on a journey from the past to the future. A solid, inspirational foundation for urban planning students, stimulating thinking on what could be."

SARA WILKINSON, UNIVERSITY OF TECHNOLOGY SYDNEY

City visions represent shared, often desirable, expectations about our urban futures. This book explores the history and evolution of city visions, placing them in the wider context of art, science, culture and urban theory. It highlights and critically reviews examples of city visions from around the world, contrasting their development and outlining the key benefits and challenges in developing such visions.

The authors show how important it is to think about the future of cities in objective and strategic ways and by engaging with a range of stakeholders – something more important than ever as we look to visions of a sustainable future.

"Amid the resurgence of interest in work and labour around the world, this new journal, with its impressive editorial team, is a promising addition to the field."

RUTH MILKMAN CITY UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK GRADUATE CENTER, USA

Work in the Global Economy is an interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal that promotes understanding of work, and connections to work, in all forms and dimensions. This can mean a focus on labour processes, labour markets, labour organising and labour reproduction.

The Editors welcome wide-ranging contributions that extend and deepen connections between all aspects of the division of labour: from the production networks that underpin the global economy, to the gendered and racial divides that shape how work is allocated and organised.
